NATION WON'T BACK DOWN ON TARIFF ISSUE

Washington Much Annoyed at Methods Adopted by French Government

CAL TAKES FIRM STAND

Will Not Permit Europe to Exert Trade Pressure in Debt Payment

BULLETIN

Paris —(AP)—France's reply to the latest American memorandum regarding the tariff question has been handed to Sheldon Whitehouse, the charge d 'affaires and will be forwarded to Washington Saturday.

Washington — The United States has no intention of backing down in the tariff dispute with France. There is, on the other hand, a good deal of annoyance here over the methods used by France in trying to obtain tariff concessions.

American officials point out that France must have known that the executive branch of the government cannot amend the tariff law and provide for reciprocity. This is solely the province of congress. There is no secret about the fact that the executive possesses retaliatory powers in case a foreign power should discriminate, and that there was every intention to use this power of reprisal. What the French did not realize was that the United States was in earnest about using the power of reprisal.

Reports reaching here from abroad show that the French have been surprised over the firmness of the American position. The truth is that more damage would have been done to French trade had the reprisals been carried into effect than the French government could have stood.

AWAIT FRENCH ACTION

The whole subject lends itself to negotiation. But until the French government abandons its purpose of putting into effect the discriminatory rates, nothing can be done at this end.

The demand of France is regarded here as a symptom of what all Europe will want before long, namely a means of breaking down the tariff wall so as to be able to pay for war debts with goods. So long as President Coolidge is in power there will be no deviation from the policy of protection which aims first to assure American industry of a safe domestic market. Even if this means a longer time for Europe to adjust herself to the payment of her debt to America, the fact is that the present administration would rather keep its protective policy which means many billions of dollars to American industry rather than to consider the few millions involved in annual payments on war debts, particularly in the next few years.

CAN'T EXERT PRESSURE

Officials here point out that if the Europeans think they can use the tariff as a means of exerting pressure on the war debt, they will find themselves very much mistaken. Although the Washington government has not said anything publicly to express its chagrin over the French tariff policy there is plenty of evidence that the French did not do themselves any good in a diplomatic sense by their sudden proclamation of discriminatory rates.

When congress meets the whole subject no doubt will be aired, as will also the French debt question. The flexible provisions of the tariff law will come in for attack anyhow because in most instances the tariff has been raised instead of reduced. The French theory that the president has the power to reduce the rate of 50 per cent is not in accord with the practice here, which has been to recommend a reduction only in cases where costs of production warranted. In other words, the flexible provisions of the tariff have not been used as a basis for reciprocity negotiations. Indeed the executive branch of the government is powerless to make concessions to France even if it were inclined to do so.

BADGER ATTORNEY DIES AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS

Hudson— (AP)—Charges of arson against Henry Gleason and G. A. Dressel of Glenwood City, will be pressed, authorities announced Saturday, following disagreement of the jury which reported on the case Friday. Gleason and Dressel, insurance and land agents at Glenwood City, are charged with setting fire to buildings on Gleason's farm at Cylon in September, 1925. Mrs. Coolidge Preparing For Busy Social Winter

Washington, D. C.—(AP)—The social winter in Washington, only a little less formal here than in the royal courts abroad, is not far distant, and capital society, with the White House occupying its time-honored position as criterion, is now recovering from its summer lethargy under the stimulus of preparation for the new season.

Mrs. Coolidge, as the nation's official hostess, has stolen a march on other capital matrons and is about ready to announce dates for the round of 1927-28 entertainments at the White House. She probably will make them public on Sunday, Oct. 9.

President and Mrs. Coolidge have made few innovations in state entertainments. Not since the autumn of 1923 has the president's wife held a reception or given a tea to the members of the diplomatic corps and their wives, but, instead, Mrs. Coolidge has set the entire program for state functions as much forward as possible, giving not less than three of them—the cabinet dinner, diplomatic reception and diplomatic dinner before Christmas.

A military affair, the army carnival benefit for the Army Relief society, lured the president and Mrs. Coolidge from the White House Saturday.

ALABAMA OFFICERS WAGE BITTER WAR ON "TERROR REIGN"

Birmingham, Ala. — (AP) — "A reign of terror," involving 93 cases of floggings, kidnapings and deaths, has goaded Alabama authorities into an exhaustive investigation with a promise of speedy retribution for the persons responsible.

Attorney General Charlie C. McCall, in a statement to the Age-Herald, declared that 20 cases Crenshaw-co alone, involve than 150 persons. In 90 per of the cases, he declared, the mask and hood was employed.

"I am not a fanatic on the question," Mr. McCall announced, "and I do not seek to exaggerate the situation, but it was virtually a reign of terror."

Many of the victims involved have been intimidated into refusing to testify as to their injuries, Mr. McCall declared.

2 FARMERS KILLED NEAR WEST ALLIS

Officials Suspect Murder and Suicide—Bodies Are Found in Barn

Milwaukee—(AP)—The bullet-riddled bodies of Herbert Peters, 26, and Harry Manteufall, 48, neighbors, were found in the barn of the Peters farm, a mile and a half west of West Allis, Saturday morning. Deputies who investigated expressed a theory of murder and suicide after an autopsy had shown that Peters was slain by three bullets fired through his body.

The body of Peters was found by his wife, lying on the floor of the barn near a stall at 8 o'clock Saturday morning, and several hours later the body of Manteufall, who has been mentally unbalanced was discovered in the hay loft by neighbors who made a search.

The body of Manteufall was found slumped in a pile of hay in the barn loft. One bullet had been fired through his brain. While farmers said Manteufall had been acting strangely, they told deputies that they knew of no trouble between the two dead men.

Burial will be at Forest Home cemetery here, instead of Pewaukee, as was first intimated.

ILLINOIS MINERS READY TO SETTLE COAL STRIKE

Chicago—(AP)—The Illinois miners' committee Saturday accepted the proposal of a sub-committee of miners and operators to settle the six months tie-up of mining activities in Illinois. The operators' committee still was considering the proposal and will reach a decision during the day.

The proposal accepted by the miners was that all return to work under the Jacksonville agreement, to which the operators have objected, and that all disputes over wages and working conditions be presented to a joint commission composed of the president and vice president of the operators' organizations and the miners' union, this committee to report to the full joint scale committee next Feb. 7, the report to form a basis for adjustment of the entire dispute.

The proposal accepted by the miners Saturday is similar to one which was rejected by operators two weeks ago when a conference was broken off, except that the membership of the commission is different.

AUTOMOBILE CRASHES INTO WALL; 1 HURT

Mrs. C. S. Buckland, 79, was seriously injured Saturday morning when brakes of an automobile in which she was riding failed to hold, the sedan crashing into a stone wall at the east end of W. Prospect-ave.

Mrs. Buckland and her daughter, Mrs. Howard Reeve, 218 W. Prospect-ave, were starting to drive Saturday morning, and Mrs. Reeve parked the car in front of Mrs. Buckland's home on W. Prospect-ave when she went back into the house to get a wrap. The brakes failed to hold and the car dashed down the steep Prospect-st hill crossed S. Oneida-st and crashed into the wall.

Mrs. Buckland suffered internal injuries, cuts about the face and head, and may have a fractured skull. Attending physicians express the belief, however, that she will recover.

"DON'T WANNA GO HOME," VETS SING IN ENGLAND

London —(AP)— Singing "we don't wanna go home" hundreds of American legionaires who have been visiting England after their Paris convention entrained at Waterloo station Saturday for Southampton. Six liners start 2,500 legionaires on their homeward voyage Saturday, most of the veterans planning to board the vessels at Cherbourg.

Waterloo station here sounded just like a college town station when the school term is over. A legion band, with saxophones predominating, marched up and down the platform while a morning stream of London commuters, a little shocked at the noise, but greatly entertained, nevertheless, paused to listen.

TROTZKY IS EXPELLED BY SOVIET BODY

Voiced Opposition to Group in Control Causes Loss of Office

Moscow—(AP)—Leon Trotzky, once all-powerful war minister of the soviets, has again felt the weight of discipline for his outspoken opposition to the Stalin and Bucharin group, controlling the Communist party and the Communist or Third Internationale.

Shorn of governmental post and demoted in the Russian Communist party for his attacks on the controlling group in the past, he has now been expelled from the executive body of the Internationale together with M. Vuyovich, one of his chief aides.

The expulsion was unanimously voted by the presidium of controlling organism of the Internationale which, as the name indicates, directs international Communist activities.

Trotzky and Vuyovich, the resolution said, could no longer be allowed to serve on the executive body because "of their violent struggle against the organization by means of underground printing plants, coupled with organizing illegal centers and inciting malicious slander against Soviet Russia abroad."

OTHERS ARE EXPELLED

The action came after the expulsion of 14 persons, including several red army workers from the ranks of the Communist party Thursday. These persons were accused of carrying on insidious oppositionist propaganda, maintaining a secret printing plant, circulating secret party documents in bulk, holding conspiracy conferences and working with a number of intellectual burgois violently opposed to the central executive committee.

Trotzky and Vuyovich, summoned before the disciplinary committee, expressed open defiance the former war minister saying "bureaucratic discipline is founded on false political precepts, and offers no weapon for unity but for disorganization and split."

GOVERNOR OF KENTUCKY PROTESTS RATE RULING

Frankfort, Ky.— (AP) —The Interstate Commerce commission, by suspending the 20 per cent reduction in cargo coal rates proposed by carriers serving the coal fields of Kentucky, West Virginia, Virginia and Tennessee, is striving to extend greater freight advantages to favored shippers, Governor W. J. Fields said in a letter to governors of five northwestern states.

The letter was addressed to Governors Green of Michigan, Zimmerman of Wisconsin, Christianson of Minnesota, Sorlie of North Dakota, and Bulow of South Dakota. It stated that consumers in those states would suffer a loss of from five to six million dollars annually; should the reduced rates be ordered cancelled and requested, the states must join with the southern coal states in opposing cancellations before the commission.

Germans Cheer Nation's Chief On 80th Birthday

Berlin—(AP)—All Germany Saturday began celebrating in honor of President von Hindenburg's eightieth birthday Sunday, the festivities beginning a day in advance because of their multiplicity. At noon the president received Chancellor Marx, who handed over a deed conferring upon him the right to dispose of the "Hindenburg national birthday fund," which has been gathered throughout Germany for many months and which the president requested to be used to aid war widows, orphans and cripples.

The national government also presented him with a porcelain table service of historical pattern of the period of Frederick the Great. A great crowd gathered at the presidential palace to see the gifts arrive.

American Ambassador Jacob Gould Schurman and Mrs. Schurman sent a basket of 80 American Beauty roses with greetings.

One old country woman even sent a hand embroidered silk baby's cap with long satin ribbons, explaining that this was the best present she could afford and that, while perhaps inappropriate, for a gentleman of 80 it might do for his grandchildren.

To make the occasion one for additional rejoicing, the president plans to grant amnesty to about 800 prisoners.

When Von Hindenburg became president in May, 1925, his opponents decried the choice of one so advanced in years, but, on the threshold of 80 he displays a vigor which might be envied by many a younger man.

FIND BOOZE IN CAR; TO QUESTION ARMY CAPTAIN

Chicago—(AP)—An alcoholic leak in a carload of furniture, consigned to Captain J. Leland Bass, Quartermaster's corps, U. S. Army, Selfridge Field, Mich., has started five federal agencies investigating.

The prohibition department, answering on an anonymous telephone tip, found the car in the Chicago Junction freight yards. In it, besides many articles of household furniture, they came upon four large packing cases. The leak was from one of these. Breaking open the case they found champagne, four brands of whisky and twenty gallons of alcohol. Captain Bass, now at Selfridge Field, is to be questioned, the prohibition agents said.

Mrs. Duke and Mr. Berry had attended a bridge party at the home of Howard Drew in Evanston and were stopped by the two bandits just after they left. When the men stopped them, Mrs. Drew put her two rings in her mouth, without the bandits being any wiser. The $2,000 in large bills was in a pocket of Berry's wallet separate from the three dollars which the robbers took and they overlooked it in their hurried search of their victim.

MAP PROGRAM TO GIVE HELP TO REFUGEES

Troops, Police and American Legion Join Hands to Assure Order

OVER 1,000 PERSONS HURT

2,303 Families in 195 Blocks Affected by Tornado, Red Cross Estimates

St. Louis, Mo.—(AP)—Nearly 2,000 relief workers, enlisted under the Red Cross, Saturday started a systematic program for aiding 2,303 families in 195 blocks, shown by a survey to have been affected by Thursday's tornado which killed 83 persons and injured more than 1,000 in St. Louis and vicinity. Revisions of the death list showed several duplications. Jesse Roberts, one of those reported killed, was found to be alive. Six others were reported to police as missing.

More than 300 injured were still in hospitals Saturday and more than 800 others have received medical treatment.

A heavy rain Saturday increased the discomfort of many families, who, because of the mild weather, had chosen to remain in their shattered homes temporarily.

House to house canvasses gave 5,500 as the approximate number of buildings destroyed or damaged.

That more than a million dollars worth of automobiles were destroyed was another reason for checking earlier hospital lists.

Survey of the entire strom area showed the bulk of serious storm damage was done to homes, apartment buildings, small stores, small factories and churches. H. M. Bixby, president of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, expressed the opinion that the total loss would be close to $100,000,000.

DON'T REQUIRE HELP

Calling upon all members of his organization to respond to the Red Cross appeal President Bixby said St. Louis would meet the emergency without outside help. Gangs of wreckers under the building commissioner started work Saturday morning tearing down dangerous parts of damaged buildings. Overhanging walls were the principal menace.

All night members of a Sixth infantry, U. S. Army detachment, a contingent of the Missouri National guard and the American legion, supplementing the St. Louis police force, patrolled the storm area in darkness. The storm had splintered poles, snapped standards and shattered street lights. The army and civilian police forces were prepared to shoot at marauders, but evidently none was seen.

HAD VACUUM EFFECT

A study of the ruins, where hundreds of houses were found with one wall blown cleanly out, demonstrated the action of tornoda vacuum to all twisters. It was pointed out that the air was suddenly removed from around the houses and the inner pressure, seeking relief, forced out the walls or lifted roofs. In many cases clothing hanging on the inner walls was unmoved. Churches of all denominations suffered damage.

Between a million and a half to two million dollars damage was done to nine schools. Greatest damage was occasioned by the toppling of the ornamental tower of Central high school, where five girls were crushed to death. Relief was in charge of the Red Cross.

Metropolitan Opera Soprano Will Sing in Appleton on Oct. 7

Marion Talley, soprano of the Meopolitan Opera company who is cheduled to give one of her concerts t Lawrence Memorial chapel on Oct. is now busy coaching for new roles hich she will sing at the Metropoli-n Opera house this winter.

She has been engaged for the third uccessive season and asked to prare two roles. This is indicative of er success the last two seasons. In ddition to the operas already in her epertoire, Rigoletto, Lucia, Nightnale, Tales of Hoffmann, Magic Flute, nd Mignon, Miss Talley will be heard ext year in Rossini's Barber of Seille and Rimsky-Korsalf's Coq d'Or.

The rise of Marion Talley from a noir girl in a Kansas City church to leading soprano of the Metropoli-an Opera company, all without the nfluence of wealth very little Euopean training, is another example f what is considered possible only in merica.

To the qualities of pluck, perserance and a God-given natural oice of freshness, brilliance and eauty, must be added a definite touch f genious which permitted this naive nd unspoiled girl to walk unconcernedly on the stage of the Metropoli-an Opera house before a gala audince on that memorable night last ebruary, to a triumph which is spoken of everywhere in terms of comparion with Adelina Patti and Jenny ind.

That historical occasion was Miss alley's first performance in opera, nd practically her first appearance ith orchestral accompaniment.

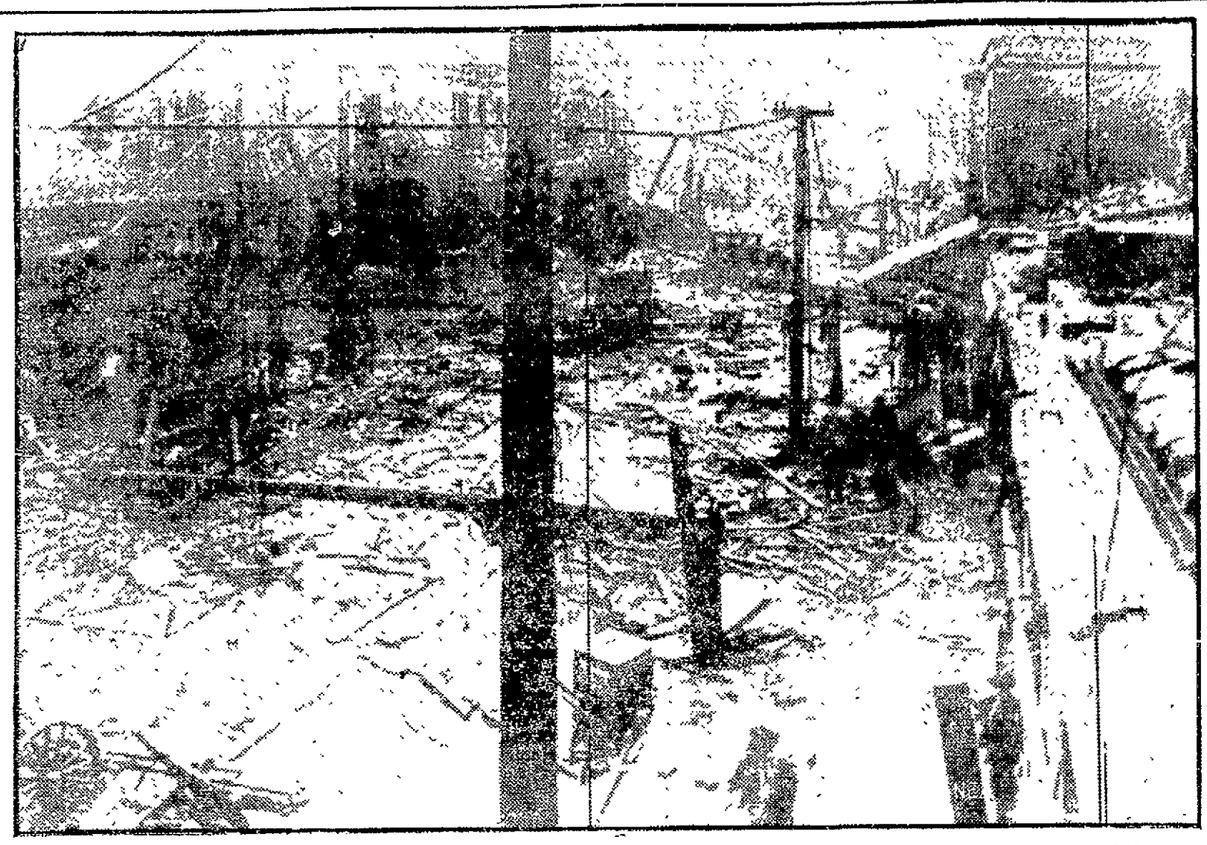

Surety, phrasing and perfect intonaion are qualities to which her success s due. Her years of study as a child t the pianoforte and on the violin rought her through the ordeal in a manner which is naturally acclaimed.

PAVING WORK HALTED BY HEAVY RAINFALL

The heavy rains of the past week rought to a halt work being done by Appleton paving contractors and for the time there is little indication it will be resumed for another week or ten days. The W. J. Driscoll company, which has the contract for paving the ake road, is experiencing the most rouble with the weather because they ave not yet completed their work and will not be able to lay the remaining wo miles of concrete for some time. owever, after the damage to the road ed has been repaired, it is estimated hat eight days will be necessary to inish the concrete work.

Grunske Brothers construction ompany has completed its four mile roject on highway 47 from the Winnebago-co line to Greenville and has inished putting shoulders on about alf of the stretch. The men hulled heir work but only a few days will be needed to finish the task when operaions are resumed.

LETTER GOLF

HOW'S THE WEATHER

Some climates have sudden changes, going from FAIR to WARM in most no time. In LETTER GOLF, however, par is five strokes for the change. The answer is printed on page 4.

F	A	I	R
W	A	R	M

THE RULES

1 The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW TO HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

2. You can change only one letter at a time.

3. You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count.

4. The order of letters cannot be changed

Menasha Couple Plead For Their Wayward Boy

Pleading in broken English with Chief of Police Prim to free their 15-year-old son, arrested with another boy for stealing rides on a freight train, a Menasha couple rent the air of the police station with lamentations Saturday morning. The old couple apparently has been in this country only a few years as attested by their clothes of pronounced foreign cut and their almost complete lack of English.

When the mother was shown the cell in which her boy had spent the night she wrung her hands and moaned while tears coursed down her cheeks. Her husband, as spokesman for the family, did the talking, mixing up his little English with his native tongue in so bewildering a fashion that policemen and reporters had trouble understanding his story.

"He not a bad boy, Mister Chief, he only go with bad boys who run away when they get in trouble," the old man said. "I leek him and leek him when he no behave and he no behave then He got goot home, automobile, spend-in money and he get in trouble anyway You let him go this time Mister Chief and I give him leeking he no forget. If he no behave again we send him to jail."

The mother apparently understood the meaning of that last word for she began another moaning and lamentation wheih increased in intensity and volume as she took another look at the cell room.

"All night his ma she lay awake worrying and crying. This morning I go to restaurant and ask where is he. Nobody know. Then I hear he is in jail in Appleton. I get his ma and come right over. Please Mister Chief let him go."

The chief let the boys go and told them to stay out of Appleton.

CLEVER COUNTERFEIT BILL IN CIRCULATION

Notice has been received at the Appleton post office that there is a counterfeit $10 gold certificate in circulation and that postal authorities should be on the lookout. The note is of the 1922 series with the check letter C and the face plate number 252. The back plate number is 78 and also bears the name H. V. Spellman, register of the treasury together with that of Frank White, treasurer of the United States, and a portrait of Michael Hillegas.

The note is said to be extremely well executed though flaws may be noted by one experienced in handling money. It is made of two thin pieces of paper which have been pasted together after thin hairs had been inserted between them. Two of the imperfections most easily noted are the poor etching lines and the fact that the note is a half inch shorter than the genuine bills. The serial seal is printed in pale orange which can be noted when compared with the back of the note, which is a comparatively richer color. The back of the note appears much to be a much better job than the face. The serial number of the bill is H-51.266,323.

ARRANGE FESTIVALS AT SEVEN VILLAGES THROUGHOUT COUNTY

Rural School Pupils Will Be Trained in Selection of Fair Exhibits

A series of community fairs or fall festivals are being arranged by A. G. Meating, county superintendent of schools and R. A. Amundson, agricultural agent, for the purpose of giving rural school pupils training in selection of fair exhibits.

The fairs will be held at Black Creek, Bear Creek, Shiocton, Nichols, Hortonville, Dale and Greenville Each village is the central point of a district including other schools within an eight mile radius. The schools of each district will take part in the fall festival held at the central point in the district.

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, Mr. Amundson and Mr. Meating, and Miss Nellie McDermott and Arthur J. Collar, rural school supervisors, will conduct arrangement meetings at each of the central districts. The heads of the parent-teachers association, teachers of each school and the clerk of each school district will attend the meeting to set the date for the district fairs and make other arrangements, including appointment of local committees to handle the work.

It is expected, according to Mr. Meating, that the fairs will be held during the third week in October. The entire day will be given over to the exhibit of farm products, selected by the children, and displays of school work.

Judges will be selected by each district and the children whose displays win places will be awarded prizes. It is planned that in the evening of the day of the exhibit in each district, all the cooperating schools will join in presenting a program, for which a small admission will be charged. This admission money will be used to defray the expenses of the show, including the prize awards.

YOUNG GAS STATION THIEVES CAUGHT AS THEY PASS POLICE

Boys Admit Stealing Money Here and Taking Two Knives in New London

Two Fond du Lac boys, Edward Tessler, 11, and David Fahl, 13, who stole about $18 at the Deep Rock Oil company filling station at the corner of W. College-ave and Walnut-st early Friday morning were apprehended by Sergeant Herb Kapp and Officer Albert Deltgen Saturday morning. The boys were seen by Sergeant Kapp as they passed the police station and with Officer Deltgen he gave chase and caught them in front of the fire department building on N. Oneida-st.

The youths admitted they stole the money at the filling station Friday morning but declared they only took $10. The younger boy said the older youth had taken the money and divided it with him. As soon as they obtained the money, according to their story, they boarded a bus and went to New London where they stopped at a hardware store and purchased a six-inch hunting knife in a leather case. While the clerk was making change the boys stole another knife, exactly like the one they had bought, and they also took a pocket knife.

FRIGHTENED MOTORIST

The youths said they remained in New London all day and started for Appleton afoot early in evening. They said a motorist had given them a "lift" but when they showed him their "daggers" he stopped his machine and made them get out. They arrived in Appleton late Friday night and slept under a porch of a home on E. College-ave, they said.

When they awoke Saturday morning, they set out to find something to eat and when they passed the police station in their hunt they were recognized by Sergeant Kapp.

The boys explained their actions by saying they did not want to go back to a reformatory in Milwaukee. They had no definite plans for the future except they wanted to keep out of sight of the sheriff of Fond du Lac-co.

They are being held at the police station pending the arrival of the Fond du Lac-co sheriff, who will return them to the St. Charles school in Milwaukee in which they had been sent for from two to four years for stealing from a filling station at Fond du Lac about two weeks ago. The boys escaped from the sheriff Thursday morning when they were taken back to Fond du Lac for questioning in another case.

Reservations must be made at the chamber office as soon as possible.

Mr. Gettle not only has been a member of the railroad commission for several years but he also has been importantly connected with the Western trunk line rate raise case. He will give information to buyers of transportation of this vicinity which is not available from any other source, chamber officers said.

CORBETT RETURNS FROM WAUSAU TRIP

Hugh G. Corbett, secretary of the chamber of commerce, returned Friday from Wausau where he spent two days conferring with a representative of the Federal government on the matter of airports. The government man was in Wausau helping that city attain an airport and he moves from city to city where his presence is requested. Mr. Corbett said the agent will be brought here if the city decides to have a port.

Wausau is planning a port of about 10 acres outside the city limits. The plans also call for a municipal golf course in connection with the port. The government man suggests what should be done to complete the field.

The PENNY PRINCESS

COPYRIGHT 1927 by NEA Service

by Anne Austin

BEGIN HERE TODAY

VERA CAMERON allows herself to be transformed from a plain business girl into a beauty by JERRY MACKLYN, her boss, and advertising manager of the Peach Bloom Cosmetics Co., who proposes to use her photographs in advertising booklets. She plans to spend her vacation at Lake Minnetonka, because the man she loves, but whom she has not yet met, SCHUYLER SMYTHE, is vacationing there.

At Minnetonka, Vera meets Smythe and he and other guests mistake her for VIVIAN CRANDALL, heiress and ex-princess, who after a Paris divorce is in hiding. Vera tries to convince everyone of her true identity, but when she realizes Smythe is in love with the girl he thinks she is, she abandons attempts at further confession.

Hotel guests returning to the city tel the Crandalls of their supposed daughter's presence at the Minnetonka and detectives are sent for her. They come at night, and Vera and Schuyler, who still thinks she is Princess Vivian, tells her of his love and proposes they be married at once. Believing he will love her for herself alone, Vera tells him the truth, substantiating her identity by Jerry's letter.

Smythe is furious, revealing himself definitely as a fortune-hunter. After his violent outburst, he is terrified at the princess that perhaps this girl is the princess after all and is trying to test his love, but his character is already revealed.

Two masked men stop them and take Vera. They whisk her away in an airplane and she is taken to a shack where Vivian's ex-husband, PRINCE IVAN, awaits them. Vera and Ivan are terrified when the kidnapers announce the prince's fee is not enough and that they shall lock the two in the shack until the Crandall's produce a sizeable ransom. The prince is furious when he discovers Vera's true identity but she convinces him they must play the part lest these men murder them on finding she is not the princess but a penniless nobody.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXIX

When Jerry Macklyn awoke on Thursday morning, it was with a smile on his broad mouth. He had just been dreaming a most satisfactory dream about spoiling the face of a patent-leather-haired sheik and walking off with Vera Cameron clinging proudly to his muscular arm.

His big body stretched luxuriously as his smile, carried over from the dream, changed to a rueful grin at his own conceit and the absurdity of his hopes.

"Snap out of it, you big lummox!" he advised himself vigorously, but he watched the ripple of muscle along his powerful, freckled arms with lazy satisfaction. If he could just take a crack at that society idler that she was breaking her heart over—

"Hey, Nikko!" he shouted in a great bellow of a voice that brought a short slim Japanese on a run.

"Yiss, honorable boss!" the Jap hissed, smiling and ducking his little round black head.

"Nourishment, Nikko! Sustenance! Food! In other words, a board groanings under its own weight of raspberries, cream, bacon, eggs, and hot rolls, coffee and what have you! And make it snappy, you grinning little cartoon!"

"Yiss, honorable boss," Nikko grinned more broadly than ever. "Honorable boss hungry?"

"You tell 'em. Nikko I'm too weak!" Jerry begged, tumbling out of bed and wrapping his big body in a dressing gown. "Say, Nikko, would you say that your honorable boss is a handsome man?"

The Jap bobbed and grinned. "Honorable boss very grand man. Very handsome. Honorable boss what-you-call-'em sheik!"

"You're a cock-eyed liar, Nikko! Now, get out of here and razzle me some grub!"

When Jerry returned from his cold shower and shave and sat down to breakfast in his East Eighty-first street apartment, there was a tall glass of orange juice embedded in crushed ice awaiting him, and from the electric range come the comforting odors of coffee and frying bacon. But the breakfast was destined never to be eaten, for beside his plate lay a copy of a morning paper.

He had just drunk his orange juice in one long, thirsty draught, when his eyes caught sight of a name which had come to have a terrible significance to him. He snatched up the paper and read the headline:

CRANDALL HEIRESS KIDNAPED.

"I'll be—" he began, then his eyes took in the smaller headline beneath the big letters:

VIVIAN CRANDALL SPIRITED AWAY FROM MINNETONKA BY MASKED MEN.

"The Minnetonka!" he groaned aloud. "Then the little fool's done it—posed as Vivian Crandall after all my warning! Oh, Lord!"

But he had little time for groaning. His eyes raced up and down the heavily-leaded, two-column "lead" of the sensational front-page story:

"Vivian Crandall, until less than a month ago the Princess Vivian, wife of Prince Ivan Polaski of Russia and Paris, and for whom a nation-wide search has been made since her mysterious disappearance three weeks ago after she had landed in New York and quarreled with her parents, has been a guest since Sunday of the exclusive Minnetonka hotel, on Lake Minnetonka, New York, it was revealed by long distance and telegraph dispatches early this morning. She was registered there as Miss Vera Cameron, but was recognized by a score of guests and by the management as the missing Crandall heiress, despite her efforts to maintain an incognito—"

"Poor kid!" Jerry groaned. "She tried to convince them, but it wasn't any use. I ought to have tied her up before letting her run into a mess like this!"

"Miss Crandall, is she prefers to be called since her Paris divorce from the prince, left the hotel shortly before midnight last night in the company of another guest, Schuyler Smythe of New York. According to Smythe, who had been extremely attentive to the heiress since her arrival at the hotel on Sunday, the couple were eloping to be married—"

"Married! God!" Jerry breathed, and the ruddy color faded from his big, freckle face. "So she landed him all right—as Vivian Crandall! Bah! So that's the girl you've been eating your heat out for. Jerry Macklyn, you double-dyed fool!"

His hands shook so that he could hardly hold the paper as he tried to go on with his reading:

"—to be married, when their car was held up on the state highway by two masked men, who forced Miss Crandall to get into the sedan car they were driving, while, at the point of pistols, they took the keys of Smythe's car, leaving him stranded and helpless while they drove away with their victim. When Smythe was brought back to the hotel by Dr. A. J. Blessington, a physician who was hurrying to the Minnetonka in answer to an emergency call, he told the story of his interrupted elopement and of the kidnaping of the heiress. Detectives Durgan and Barr, who had been awaiting Miss Crandall's return to the hotel to identify her and to urge her to return to her parents, who have been distracted over her disappearance, took charge at once, sending out a general alarm to the county constabulary in all directions and notifying the police of New York City as well as the parents of the abducted girl.

"Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Worrell Crandall refused interviews with reporters, but the house was ablaze with lights, testifying to the fact that the Crandalls had learned the news.

"Almost as incredible, and probably as shocking to Mr. and Mrs. Crandall, multi-millionaire society leaders, is the story that Schuyler Smythe tells of his interrupted elopement with the heiress. Smythe asserts that he has known and loved the beautiful Vivian, heiress to 40 million dollars, since he met her at Palm Beach five years ago, and that their apparently sudden romance is not sudden at all. He refused to comment over long distance, on his own social and financial standing, but it has been learned that he is a private secretary to Arthur Bainbridge, retired capitalist, of No. — East Fifty-Fourth street, and now summering at his camp in Maine. No answer to this newspaper's wire to Bainbridge, asking for information on the allegedly successful suitor of one of America's richest heiresses, has been received.

"The Minnetonka Hotel was the scene last night of the wildest confusion, as detectives took charge, using it as headquarters for a frantic police search for the missing girl. At a late hour this morning nothing whatever had been learned of the possible fate of the girl. The sedan car, used by the masked kidnapers, was found, abandoned on a lonely road, about 28 miles from the Minnetonka Hotel, and identified as the property of Mrs. Emily Fosdick, a guest of the Minnetonka. The discovery of the theft of the car from the hotel garage had been reported to Mrs. Fosdick shortly before midnight."

Jerry Macklyn read no more. Action was necessary to him in any crisis. He pushed back his chair so violently that it crashed to the floor.

As he dressed, his mind milled frantically over the various aspects of the "jam" into which Vee-Vee had gotten herself, despite his warning.

"Kidnaped! Oh, Lord!" he groaned. "Two masked men who may be torturing the poor kid this very minute! But I mustn't think about that, or I'll get a mental hot box and blow up," he admonished himself. "Funny it didn't occur to anybody she might have been telling the truth when she said she was Vera Victoria Cameron. The reporters have swallowed the story whole. Deetctives, too. What a rumpus this is going to stir up! Crandall millions turned loose to find a girl that they've never seen in their lives! What a sell! What a sell!' But he did not smile at the ludicrousness of the situation. The girl he loved was in the hands of kidnapers. They would undoubtedly hold her for ransom.

"Ransom! That's the ticket. What's the matter with your think machine, you big stiff?" he berated his image in the mirror. 'Can't you think of anything to do for the poor little idiot you're in love with? Guess I'll have to trot down to police headquarters and spill the beans. Tell 'em that the joke's on them, and on the kidnapers."

He did not bother to take his own car, but jumped into a taxi. As he was about to tell the driver to take him to the nearest police staion, he changed his mind, gave instead, Flora Cartwright's adress on Seventy-ninth and Riverside Drive.

It was only eight-fifteen, he discovered, as the taxi crossed Madison avenue Within 45 minutes the entire force of the Peach Bloom Cosmetics Company would be comparing notes, and arriving at the amazing truth which had, until this morning, been his secret and Vee-Vee's.

He was in a cold perspiration when he rang the bell of Flora Cartwright's apartment. He expected little help from Vee-Vee's frivolous aunt, but even in his frenzy of worry and indecision he recognized Flora's right to be consulted before he notified the Crandalls or the police that the girl who had been kidnaped was not Vivian Crandall but Vera Cameron.

As he waited for Flora to answer the bell, he squared his shoulders, and knotted his big hands into very competent looking fists. "I told the poor kid that I'd be on the job if she got into trouble, and by golly I'm not going to throw her to the wolves now. I'll find some way out of this mess if I have to say I'm Vivian Crandall myself!"

(To Be Continued)

Jerry Macklyn has a talk with Flora Cartwright. When he reaches the office he has another big surprise.

COMMITTEE STUDIES PETITION FOR SEWER

One Mile Line Will Be Needed to Carry Sewage from Loev's Plat

Petitions from about 100 property owners in Loev's plat, S. Cherry-st, for installation of water and sewer mains, were studied Thursday night by the street and bridge committee at a meeting in the city hall.

The question of installation of sewers in the newly open property is one that is causing city officials a great deal of worry. At the present time there are seven sewer outlets into the Fox river, the maximum allowed by the state board of health. It is unlikely that the board will allow another sewer outlet, city officials state.

Hence, if the district is to be provided with a sewer system, the outlet must be one already in use. The nearest one is at S. Oneida-st drawbridge.

If this outlet is used, it will be necessary to construct a mile of new sewer. Two routes can be used. One is from S. Chery-st via W. Seymour-st to S. Oneida-st thence to the river. It will be necessary to construct an additional new sewer on S. Oneida-st, as the present sewer is already carrying its maximum load.

The other possibility is to secure an easement across the grounds of the Riverside country club, running the sewer diagonally across that property.

The matter was referred to the city engineer for investigation.

Members of the committee also worked on an estimate of expenses for next year.

RAIN HASN'T CAUSED FARMERS TO WORRY

Rains during the past week have not yet caused worry among Outagami-co farmers who for the time are going ahead with silo filling. Because of the extremely dry ground prior to the rains the water has seeped through the soil and none is standing on fields or pasture lands.

Potatoes however, will suffer some if the rains continue indefinitely, it was said. Crops must be dug within a short time and if the rains continue so that water stands on the fields the crop may be spoiled by rot. The situation has not yet taken on an alarming aspect.

NEENAH TEAM READY FOR ST. PETER GAME

First Contest of Season Will Be Played at New Citizens' Athletic Field

Quayle, Boisenstein, Hruska, Grogan, Babcock, Hewitt, Thalke, Golmeier, Nye, and Ehlers were to be placed in the line during the game, and Radke and Shea in the back field. Harry Neubauer, the regular half back, was out of the first game owing to an infected eye.

The new field, when completed, will be one of the finest in this part of the state. Its construction was sponsored by the Kiwanis club, which raised funds to finance it. At present it has a complete football field, regulation size, surrounded with a cable to prevent spectators invading the field of play. A track around the football field is partially completed. Surrounding the entire tract is an ornamental fence and above the entrance are the words "Citizens' Athletic Field." There is plenty of parking space both inside and outside the grounds. A dressing building has been constructed at the north-east corner for the use of players. Arrangements are now on foot to provide collapsible bleachers to be placed along the football field. The new field is located at the south end of Elm-st. close to the site of the proposed new senior high school. The formal dedication of the new field will take place between the halves of the Neenah-Sturgeon Bay game on Oct. 15.

SENSELESS PROPAGANDA

And now the action of the Federal Reserve board in lowering the rediscount rate on the alleged appeal of the heads of British, German and French cental banks is to be turned into anti-British propaganda. A leading Chicago newspaper devotes an entire column on its first page to an attack on the British government revolving about this incident. Although admittedly, if the facts are as stated, the request for assistance came as much from Germany and France as from England, the anti-foreign spleen is vented on the latter alone.

The article to which we refer goes on to relate how the British out-maneuvered the United States in both the Washington arms and Geneva conferences: how Lloyd George caused Harding and Hughes to expand the jurisdiction of the Washington arms conference to include Far Eastern questions in order to make a trade with the United States for abrogation of the Anglo-Japanese alliance: how the British came to Washington pleading inability to pay their war debt in full and induced the United States to cancel 20 per cent of the obligation.

Of course, it does not matter that most of these complaints are fictitious and rest on half-truths and assumptions that are not warranted. There are no facts to support the bald statement that England got the best of us in either the Washington or the Geneva conference. In fact, it is generally agreed that the former was dominated entirely by the United States, and that the treaty there negotiated was the product of American initiative and statesmanship. As for the stalemate at Geneva, we think it is pretty well agreed that it places Great Britain in a less favorable light than the United States, and that American representatives won a moral victory in having their position upheld by Japan and in convincing most of the world of the righteousness of their demands. When we come to debt settlement Great Britain is paying a larger percentage of her obligations to the United States than any other nation, and this despite an economic condition worse than that of either France or Italy.

The Federal Reserve board has not yet admitted that it lowered the discount rate for the benefit of foreign banks. If it did and no harm has resulted to American business and credit, and it has helped both in Europe, we fail to see wherein the step was wrong. On the other hand, if it has been damaging to American interests, the injury should be specified and shown to actually exist. No good purpose is served by haranguing against foreign nations and least of all Great Britain.

There is a portion of the press which ceaselessly seeks to raise misunderstandings and suspicions in the minds of Americans touching everything European and our relations with its leading powers. This might have found some justification a hundred years ago, or even a generation ago, when militarism and intrigues there were a potential menace to American security, but not today. There is a strong disposition in Europe to see a new light, to try and build up an assured peace and to deal with the rest of the world frankly and honestly. It seems to us it is the province of the United States to welcome this sentiment and this tendency and to encourage them by cooperation where possible. Our anti-foreign propagandists are doing everything in their power to discourage Europe's peaceful and friendly overtures, and without, it seems to us, serving any good or useful purpose to the United States. To return to the re-discount rate incident, which is being made an excuse for a tirade against alleged British trickery and European malevolence, we should like to have a bill of particulars of the damage it has inflicted upon this country. When that is known it will be time enough to excoriate Europe and European motives and along with them the Federal Reserve board.

SOAP AND WATER

Popularization of cleanliness is the worthy purpose of a newly organized institute in New York city, which will avail itself of every agency of publicity to spread the gospel of soap and water. Water companies and soap manufacturers did not tarry long in endowing the movement, which was to be expected, but the movement also has the backing of health authorities, physicians and educators, for it is generally conceded that, besides being akin to godliness, cleanliness has important relationship to physical well-being, self-respect and mental health.

It has been demonstrated that longevity increases with cleanliness. Back in the sixteenth century, when people had little respect for soap and water, twenty years was the average span of human life. In this, the era of the universal bathtub and daily bathing, fifty-eight years is the longevity average. The Cleanliness institute has a unique mission. If it succeeds in lessening the number of the unwashed it will make a worthy contribution to civilization.

But one is puzzled that of all countries the United States should be the birthplace of such an organization. Certainly there are more bathtubs here than in any other country and every American has access to soap and water, something not all nations can boast of.

Lacking full particulars as to the objective of the movement, those who talk over much of their daily bath will assume it is aimed at those who bathe but twice a week, and the latter will say such a movement is for the good of those who have not progressed beyond the Saturday-night-bath stage in the evolution of cleanliness. And, no doubt, those who bathe once a week will petition the institute to draft a law making fewer or more baths an offense against society.

THE NEW FIGHT "FAN"

Accustomed as the public already is to the use of radio for broadcasting such events as the recent prize fight, it still finds it hard to realize that this instrument has been sufficiently perfected for the human voice to be carried to the opposite ends of the earth. The day after the Dempsey-Tunney fight cablegrams to American newspapers from Australia and other remote lands reported that the broadcasting of the match could be clearly heard there and that within an hour after the decision newspapers, carrying a full round-by-round account taken from the air, were being sold on the streets in those countries.

The radio experts believe this is nothing unusual, but the lay mind is still too much hemmed in by old limitations to grasp the full significance of this development of broadcasting. There is still something uncanny in the thought that a man talking quietly into a machine in Chicago can be heard simultaneously in Australia, South Africa, Europe and America. Nothing in fiction, fable, mythology or black magic ever surpassed this.

Millions of people, some thousands of miles away from the ring, followed the fight blow by blow with the eyes of the announcer at the ringside and knew the outcome within the same ten seconds that it was known to those at the ringside. The disappointment of thousands of fans who could not witness the fight was assuaged by the opportunity to follow its progress by radio. But while radio eases the suffering of the absent fan, it is making rabid enthusiasts of many men and women who have never seen a fight and who will see one at the first opportunity. So it is making new customers for Tex Rickard more rapidly than it takes old ones away from him.

OLD MASTERS

At the mid hour of night when stars are weeping, I fly
To the lone vale we loved, when life shown warm in thine eye;
And I think oft, if spirits can steal from the regions of air
To revisit past scenes of delight, thou wilt come to me there,
And tell me our love is remembered even in the sky.

Then I sing the wild song 'twas once such rapture to hear,
When our voices commingling breathed like one on the ear;
And, as Echo far off through the vale my sad orison rolls,
I think, O my love, 'tis thy voice from the Kingdom of Souls
Faintly answering still the notes than once were so dear.

Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician And Author

Dr. Brady will answer all signed letters pertaining to health. Writer's names are never printed. Only inquiries of general interest are answered in this column, but all letters will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Requests for diagnosis or treatment of individual cases cannot be considered. Address Dr. William Brady, in care of this paper.

YOU TELL 'EM, I CAN'T

A dentist, deploring in a friendly way my attitude toward the practice of brushing the teeth, says that with my great audience I might do so much good—and my friend probably had not thought it over, but that is the very reason why I take such an attitude. No teacher can more thoughtfully consider the effect on his followers of his views or attitudes than I do. The greatest inspiration in this trade of mine is the opinion of our customers. I dare not take the chance of shaking the confidence of readers by promoting unsound thories or by attacking unassailable facts. I am constantly striving to win the confidence of new readers and to hold it. When I have gained the reader's confidence in the scientific accuracy and the disinterested honesty of the advice or teachings I offer, then, I believe, as my dentist friends says, I can do some good. My ambition is to command such confidence that I may tell a reader that the thing he thinks is perfectly white is really black and he will know it must be so. Some such confidence is essential if the laity is to acquire any better knowledge of hygiene or any better control of personal health than now prevails. I want every reader to know that I am in no way fettered or bound by the tenets of any school or pathy or ism and the only code of ethics I bow to is the w. k. golden rule. I have no concern or regard for the pet vagaries or schemes of any organization, group, clique, fraternity or band of dear doctors or near doctors. I hold no brief for any other interest than the welfare and happiness of the reader, though I confess I have had impressive offers of rewards or law suits from various interests who liked or disliked my line.

This outburst is due to an inquiry in today's mail. The correspondent tells how he or she is left alone throughout the week and therefore has plenty of time to become introspective and self centered. Lately the correspondent has discovered that the kidney excretion, on standing an hour or so, becomes cloudy and pretty soon a white sediment appears . . .

Now when I assure this correspondent that such cloudiness and sediment are normal it is hard to resist adding a friendly warning: Don't read quack doctor bait.

Will the correspondent heed the advice or even accept my word against the slick insinuations in the quack doctor or nostrum booklets? That, I suppose, depends on the degree of confidence the correspondent has in me.

It ought to be impressed upon the laity by all teachers or advisers who are not themselves engaged in exploiting popular credulity, that it is unwise to read anything about sickness, ill health, disease, unless you have reasonable assurance that the author is on the square. That assurance you cannot have if it is a quack doctor book or a mail order healer's pamphlet or circular, or a short cut healer's trade canvassing letter. But it is an even chance you will ask who is to give you the necessary assurance, and I smilingly answer "William Brady, M. D., at your service." Of course, there are plenty of other disinterested sources, but I had better not mention them now, lest it weaken some reader's confidence.

If you are still with me about this, may I not add just another straw—it is even more foolish to read anything about health, hygiene, diet, physical training, unless you have had the O. K. of a competent disinterested expert or authority on it.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Slippery Subject

If I am not mistaken, I saw once in your column that white petroleum jelly made by the ——— company served the same purpose for a lubricant as various mineral oils. (B. S. J.)

Answer—It is a slippery subject and there is much confusion about it. I myself had always assumed that "vaseline" was a common name for petroleum jelly or what is medically called soft petrolatum. But when I so employed the term I received a sharp reminder from a proprietary firm that it is their trademark name and since then I have referred to it as petrolatum (official name) or petroleum jelly (popular name.) Now in England this same substance is called soft paraffin. In fluid form or rather liquid, it is called liquid paraffin. In America the liquid form is popularly called mineral oil and also it is sold under many special trade names such as American oil, Russian oil. If one has no great repugnance for soft petrolatum it will serve the same purpose as the more expensive liquid petrolatum or mineral oil. The ordinary yellow petrolatum jelly is not so easy to take internally as a finer grade known as white petrolatum or white petroleum jelly.

THE HUNTING SEASON IS ON

HASKIN WRITES TODAY ON—

A NEW DARK HORSE

Washington, D. C. — A new dark horse is being groomed and trained for the Republican presidential nomination, according to reports that are filtering into Washington. Interestingly enough, this possible new entry in the big 1928 handicap is a native of Massachusetts. That he should be seriously considered by party leaders of that State as a candidate is pointed to as evidence that President Coolidge is definitely out of the running and that the Republicans of his home State are making their plans accordingly.

The new prospect is none other than William Cameron Forbes, of Boston, former Governor General of the Philippines. The elements of strength he is said to possess are that he has long been a close student of governmental affairs and is a splendid executive, that he could command support from all sections of the country and all factions of the party, that Massachusetts and all New England would rally behind him enthusiastically as the logical successor to Coolidge, and that his nomination and election would insure the continuance of a sound, conservative, business-like administration of the nation's affairs.

No aggressive campaign is contemplated in Mr. Forbes' behalf, it is stated; at least not for some months. When a dark horse wins a national convention contest it is almost invariably because he develops the essential qualities of a compromise candidate, rather than by reason of any startling strength as an active aspirant he may suddenly display.

This, then, is the present plan projected for the Forbes candidacy: let the so-called active candidates make the running and get into as bitter a contest as may be—the bitterer the better; keep the Boston man favorably before the party and the public, stressing his acceptability to the friends and backers of all the other contenders, and then when it appears that the convention is to be deadlocked and no other candidate can be named without engendering to much bad feeling, bring Forbes forward in the interests of peace, harmony, and the best chance of carrying the election.

REMINISCENT OF HARDING

All that is decidedly reminiscent of the manner in which the late Warren G. Harding was nominated in 1920, and to a degree recalls the nomination of John W. Davis by Democrats in 1924. The exception in the case of the latter is that the harmony movement in the Democratic National Convention was delayed until the party was fairly rent asunder and went into the campaign for the election spiritless and virtually hopeless.

But Harding's selection was a real compromise. He went into the convention without sufficient strength in delegates to give him a chance to win, in the opinion of the wisest political observer, but as the fight progressed there were developments that made the nomination of either Wood or Lowden impossible and then the Harding managers got in their deadly work. A midnight conference of party leaders was held and Harding was urged as the only man who could be nominated whose nomination would not offend any element in the party. Recalcitrants were whipped into line and the Chicago went through with a hurrah at the next session of the convention. His election by an overwhelming vote vindicated the compromise, from the standpoint of practical politics.

Forbes' adherents are making much strong talk about why none of the recognized candidates can gain the prize. That is one of the things at which compromisers are always adept and convincing — advancing their candidate by the process of elimination.

Lowden, they say, is too much the candidate of a faction — the agriculturen though he may go into the convention with more delegates than can be marshalled into any other camp. Vice President Dawes is too conspicuously a banker, and, moreover, Illinois, failing with Lowden, will never be permitted to bring forward successfully a second choice favorite son.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, and Senator Curtis, of Kansas, are dismissed as favorite sons who have no appreciable national strength. Secretary Mellon is too old. Former Senator Wadsworth, of New York, is too pronounced in his wet views. To Speaker Longworth they concede many elements of strength, but believe him hopelessly handicapped in that he will be unable to command the united support of his home State. Former Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes, they say, has eliminated himself, and his refusal to be considered as a candidate is just as final as that of President Coolidge.

SECRETARY HOOVER IS FEARED

Herbert Hoover is regarded by the Forbes people as their greatest obstacle, it is stated. They recognize the general and growing strength of the Commerce Secretary and are inclined also to credit the reports that he is potentially at least the candidate of the administration forces. In fact, about all they can do in the way of eliminating Mr. Hoover is to express the belief that he will never be able to muster the votes necessary to capture the nomination. They say that Mr. Hoover is stronger now than he will be six months from now and predict that when President Coolidge and his advisers see this to be true they will be ready to turn to a man like Forbes.

William Cameron Forbes was born in Milton, Mass., in 1870, which will make him 58 years of age when the next campaign is on. He is a grandson of Ralph Waldo Emerson. He was graduated from Harvard University in 1892 and two years later embarked upon a business career as a clerk in a Boston house. A few years later he became chief of the financial department of Stone & Webster, electrical engineers and builders, and since 1892 he has been a partner in the firm of J.M. Forbes & Company.

Mr. Forbes was a close friend of the late President Roosevelt who in 1904 appointed him a member of the Philippine Commission. He served as secretary of commerce and police in the Philippine government until July 4, 1904, when Roosevelt made him Vice-Governor General of the Islands. A little more than a year later President Taft appointed him Governor General and he held that office almost four years, when he resigned. In 1921 he was named by President Harding as a member of the Wood Forbes Commission to investigate conditions in the Philippines.

He is a man of commanding presence and is rated as a forceful and effective speaker. He has never held an elective office, so his record as a vote-getter has yet to be made.

He is unmarried, which may or may not recommend him to women voters.

DAILY HINTS FOR HEALTH

MANY FACTORS ENTER INTO HIGH NEGRO DEATH RATE

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

In a recent consideration of mortality rates in the United States a prominent physician analyzed the particularly high rates existing among negroes.

In 1920 there were 10,463,131 negroes in the United States, constituting almost 10 per cent of the population. The death rates in general are decreasing, but for a while were so much higher than those of the white race that at the negro population is only one half in proportion to the whites of what it was a century ago.

At birth a negro child has 14 years less expectancy of life than a white child; at 30 years, seven years less, and at 52 years, two years less. One of the reasons why negroes die faster than do whites is a lessened physical strength and resistance.

It must be remembered that they are a transplanted people living under conditions different from those under which the race grew. They have had, furthermore, less opportunity for education, less knowledge of sanitation and disease prevention.

Among the diseases which occur most frequently in the negro race are tuberculosis and diseases of the kidneys and lungs.

The murder rate is six times that of the whites. The diseases which seem to affect the negroes less than the whites are nervous disturbances, eye troubles and skin diseases. Their suicide rate is, moreover, about one-third that of the white race.

Because of their increased rate of mortality and their lessened life expectancy, they usually are forced to pay higher insurance rates than do white people.

A NEW YORKER IN PARIS

By Gilbert Swan

Aboard the S. S. Paris, Somewhere at Sea — Notes from the log of a Paris-bound Gothamite—

Here, caught upon a sea as blue as the old family washtub on Monday, is a little world that echoes all the desires, frustrations and achievements of humanity.....Here we are, a few hundred people picked indiscriminately from society and hence typical of all the world's struggle, romance, pathos, comedy, wealth, power and poverty.

* * *

Come with me on a stroll! First we go to third class where, among many others sits Hale Woodward.....Hale Woodward is a young negro.....He is 27 and comes from Indianapolis. For years he has been struggling to establish his position as an artist.... Finally his etchings began to attract attention .....He won a prize or so at an exhibit.....And someone told Otto Kahn, the Manhattan philanthropist, who has played good angel to so many struggling artists..... Kahn is treating Woodward to two years of Paris and Spain.....For the young negro this is his big chance.... Fortune has at last chosen to smile on him.....So he sits in the sun and sings happily.....No one on the ship is half so happy.

* * *

Up a few steps and we are second class.....And here is a little girl of seven dressed in a trim sailor suit, with a jaunty beret slanted over one ear.....She has come alone from San Francisco..... And now she travels alone to Paris.....Her fame has spread from the engine room to the captain's cabin .... Queen Marie, traveling in state to America, received not one-half the attention that comes unasked to this pretty youngster with French eyes ....The entire maid service is at her disposal .... Every woman aboard finds her protective mother impulse arounsed..... Every steward waits upon her..... she takes her lunches in a deck chair and a huge tray balances on her lap.

....The little French shops aboard have been looted of dolls and dainties. ....Her hours of rising and retiring are watched closely.....The business magnate and the peasant woman from Normandy meet at the arms of her chair.....If she walks alone for a moment we all leap from our chairs and try to divert her.....All that is tender and gentle in a great shipload of men and women floats upon the surface.

* * *

Up another stairway and we are in first class.....At the head of the stairs we all but collide with a Junoesque nursemaid..... She is garbed after the fashion of the nursemaids pictured in Harper's Bazaar, Vanity Fair and the other so-called "journals of society." .....Almost in leash run two children.....They are never out of eyesight.....If she would dare to divert her attention for a moment and they were to run about alone—but there is no such chance.....For these are the children of Mr. G—, the multi-millionaire, and member of the "400."..... Suddenly we note that for each of three children there is an individual maid..... They appear out of nowhere as though summoned by a Genii—

Often, wandering up Fifth-ave, Madison, or Park, we have seen other children of other rich men, thus held in leash, like dogs out for exercise ....And we have pitied them more than any children upon the earth.... ..They don't seem to be having much fun, for they are not allowed to participate in the "vulgar" pastimes of other children.

And there you have a little scene from three classes of a ship. And in them the elements that pretty well symbolize all life.....from the primal protective instinct to the gestures of high civilization.....all caught out here in a tiny world that plows and churns through seas of purest indigo.

The Question Box

Information on almost any subject can be secured by sending questions to the Post-Crescent Information Bureau, Fredric J. Haskin, director, Washington, D. C. The bureau does not answer questions pertaining to medicine nor does it express opinions on the merits of stocks and bonds. Send a 2-cent stamp or a stamped and self-adressed envelope with your question.

Q. Who headed the Italian Debt Commision to this country that handled the refunding of the Italian debt to the United States? G. T.

A. Count Volpi.

Q. Was Pindar considered a great poet? E. M.

A. As Homer was the great epic poet of the Greeks, and Sophocles their tragic poet, so Pindar was their lyric poet. His fragments represent nearly every kind of lyric poem.

Q. Does the tartan of the Black Watch belong to some Scottish clan? D. N. T.

A. It does not. It is entirely military. In 1725, when General Wade was sent to Scotland to pacify the Highlands, he gave orders that the six companies in existence adopt a uniform tartan. This was of a dark color and gave rise to the name of the Black Watch. In 1739 these six companies were formed into a regiment and the history of the Black Watch began.

Q. How many citizens' training camps were held this year? N. D. N.

A. Fifty-two citizens' military training camps were in operation in 33 States and one at San Juan, Porto Rico. The attendance totaled 39,676 and was larger than that of any preceding year.

Wood Blocks Expand; Find All Curbings Pushed Back

Students in physics classes at the high school and college could get a valuable lesson in expansion if they inspected the E. College-ave paving job, recently completed by the E. P. Caughlin Construction company of Chicago.

When the original estimate of material was re-checked, it was discovered that many more yards of asphalt had been used than the estimate called for. The foreman checked the work to see if distances were incorrect and found that they were. The heat during the summer expanded the wood blocks in the old paving and the heavy traffic over the street prevented "bulges," with the result that when the blocks expanded, they pushed the curbing back several inches. At one place it was found that the street was six inches wider than specifications. Curbing all along the 2,100 foot strip was pushed back an average of four inches.

The extra amount of asphalt needed for paving a strip of street four inches wide and 2,100 feet long would pave 700 square feet of surface. This is equivalent to 25 feet of pavement of 28 foot width.

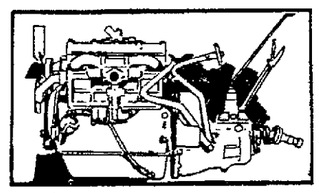

When a concrete pavement is laid, workmen allow for an expansion of one inch to every 100 feet. One fourth inch strips of tar are placed on each side of a regulation street, between the curbing and street paving. Half inch strips are placed every 50 feet of running concrete, or one inch strips every 100 feet.

1928 Features put Whippet still Further in the Lead

Engine—Develops more power for its size than any other light car engine.

Economy—The Whippet holds A. A. A. Coast-to-Coast economy record.

Big 4-Wheel Brakes—First light car to introduce this safety feature.

EVERY recent new car announcement serves to emphasize the Whippet's leadership in engineering design. Introduced 17 months ago, it changed all previous standards of light car performance. And constant improvement forecasts its continued success.

The Whippet carries the enthusiastic endorsement of more than 125,000 owners who have put this modern car to the acid test of more than 400,000,000 miles of service. Such proved superiority makes the Whippet the logical choice of anyone.

Other manufacturers must inevitably follow the Whippet's lead with greater gasoline mileage, higher speed, faster pick-up, the safety of BIG 4-wheel brakes, low center of gravity, more leg room, full-vision bodies and modern appearance.

You can buy the Whippet now, assured that a year from now it will still be the most modern car in its field—with resale value correspondingly high.

Greta Garbo And John Gilbert Finish Second Film; They Deny Engagement

BY DAN THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD. Calif.—Watch for more rumors of John Gilbert and Greta Garbo being engaged—and also more denials

Movie fans became quite excited over the prospective marriage of the two screen stars last winter about the time "Flesh and the Devil" was released But in time the whole affair blew over Maybe it was a publicity stunt to put the picture over—perhaps it wasn't

But nevertheless, it will not be at all surprising if the same reports are broadcast from the celluloid village once more. "Love," the second Gilbert-Garbo film, has just been completed As the title implies, this story based on Leo Tolstoy's "Anna Karenina," features the same sort of passionate love scenes that were responsible for the stories some months ago

It is well know that "Flesh and the Devil" was one of the biggest money makers on the Metro Goldwyn-Meyer 1926 program And the engagement stories had not a little to do with its success If Hollywood gossip doesn't engage these two again—well I've seen publicity departments start worse things than that.

I talked to Gilbert about the possibilities of the film arousing new talk over the apparently once settled question.

"I have nothing to say about it whatever," declared Jack with some emphasis "There was too much trouble over that same question once before Every newspaper in the country carried stories that we were about to be married It wouldn't be fair to Miss Garbo for me to say anything at all"

So I hastened over to Greta Garbo's dressing room

"I have no control over what is said or printed but I am not engaged to Mr. Gilbert and am not going to be," said Miss Garbo. "Jack is a fine boy and I like him immensely but there are going to be no wedding bells—or even diamonds"

That was that And as far as the principals are concerned the entire affair is ended—that is, they think it is But they are going to be besieged with questions just as they were once before.

Why? Perhaps, because the public doesn't give them credit for being able to act well enough to portray such convincing love scenes without actually being in love

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

THE Tinies dropped down on their knees to try and dodge the sand-filled breeze And then they built a mound of sand behind which they could hide. 'Twas finished soon mid quite a fuss and Scouty said. "'Twill shelter us." 'Twas queer to see the little group all huddled side by side.

"Well, this is better" Clowny said. "The sand goes sailing over my head. But, say, I'm getting hungry, and I'm rather thirsty, too I wonder where we'll find a drink" And Coppy snapped. "Well I don't think there's water on a desert Kindly tell me what we'll do"

"Now, just a minute" Scouty cried "There's nothing gained if nothing's tried. Let's crawl upon our hands and knees and get away from here. An oasis may be nearby and as for me, I think that I will start right now, and trust to luck. There's nothing much to fear

They crawled out from behind the mound. It wasn't long until they found that making progress in the sand was hard as it could be. Said Carpy, "This is something new. With each step on, I slip back two. But anyway, the wind's died down, and now we all can see."

"You bet we can—and look ahead," wee Clowny very loudly said. "There comes another camel, and a girl is at its side. It's funny how such things occur. Now, maybe if we're good to her, she'll take us back to our line, and give us all a ride."

The camel stopped right in its [illegible] The girl then pointed to its back. "She's telling us to hop right on" the bunch heard Coppy say. So up they climbed and sat real still. It seemed to give the girl a thrill. She seized the camel rope and led the Tinies on their way

MANY THINGS BETTER THAN BEST

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

WHEN I was [illegible] one saying [illegible] in our house [illegible]

It has taken [illegible] years for [illegible] It has many [illegible] on the [illegible] it seems [illegible] of wisdom.

Side by side in a store things look very different There are for instance two pieces of material One is a sheeny black velvet that drops like black water through your fingers The other is of black velveteen, stolid and durable [illegible] nothing like a bit of broken bottle beside a blue fontaine diamond

You are out for a black velvet dress One you can wear for general utility, a sport dress, one that will stand wind and rain and street and office wear But you linger fascinated over the other piece of material, the one that drips like distilled night with the glitter of icicles in its folds —the one that stands for futility, as far as hard wear is concerned "It always pays to buy the best," whispers that old alibi of your childhood. And against all reason, all sense and good judgment, you buy the beautiful thing that you may not need and cannot afford

Personally I think the adage is worn out. It was made for a day when the "best" was within the reach of pocketbooks and when the "best" did not mean all the riches of India. Before the time when the word had been interpreted by the devil in his own fashion to further his own ends. It would be much more sensible to teach our children, "Buy what you need and can afford. Look for the thing that is most useful."

Polonius said in his famous advice to his son, "Costly thy raiment as purse can buy—rich but not gaudy."

If butter and eggs and rents had been as high in Denmark then as they are now in America, I'm willing to lay a wager that the famous quotation would run something like this: "Watch the raiment which thy purse can buy Good and not shoddy. But watch also or you will pay twenty dollars a yard for stuff you don't need at all!"

FRUIT CUSTARD TART

Six eggs. 2 cups milk 3-4 cup sugar. 1-2 teaspoon vanilla, 1-2 teaspoon lemon flavoring. peaches. green gage plums. rasperries or blackberries. 1 cup whipping cream. 1-2 cup currant jelly, baked pie shell.

Use a deep pie dish and a rich crust for the shell and do not remove from dish.

Pare, halve and remove stones from enough peaches to border the outside of the pie. Cook in a heavy syrup until tender. Remove stones from enough green gages to make a border inside the peaches. Cook in heavy syrup until tender. Beat eggs slightly with sugar and a few grains of salt. Slowly add milk heated to the scalding point and cook over hot water until mixture coats spoon. Let cool and beat in flavoring. Pour into baked pie shell and let stand until cold. Then arrange the halves of peaches around the edge and inside the peaches put a row of green gages Fill the center with any small fresh fruit lightly sprinkled with powdered sugar. Whip cream until thick and beat into it a little more than half of it the jelly, which has been melted over hot water. Garnish with alternating spoonfuls of plain and pink whipped cream.

SAINT AND SINNER

By Anne Austin

Jim Lane, plodding about his room in squeaking new shoes, was completing his packing He had refused to allow Faith to help him, but seemed to be glad to have her sitting in the big old rocking chair he had brought with him from the Myrtle Street house when he had come to live with his daughter and her husband

She watched his patient, stoop-shouldered figure his sad, humble face, and the lump in her throat threatened to melt into tears

"You're sure you want to go, Dad?" she asked at last "You know, dear, I'm so glad to have you here I thought you were comfortable and—and contented"

"Couldn't have been treated finer if I was the Prince of Wales." her father asured her with an attempt to be jocular "But Junior's sort of been after me for weeks and I guess maybe it's a good thing for a useless old man like me to circulate among his children a little so's he won't wear his welcome out."

"Oh, Dad!" There were pain and reproach in Faith's cry

Jim Lane's gnarled. brown old hands trembled a little with haste and emotion as he crammed his cheap "best suit" into his suitcase. In spite of his almost old-maidish passion for order he left it a little wrinkled to go to Faith, to stand behind her chair his hands falling heavily upon her shoulders

"Honey, I wouldn't hurt your feelings for the world" he told her huskily. "But I'm getting old enough now to have a little sense, and I know you and Bob would be mighty relieved if I could shift the whole family off your shoulders, instead of just my own worthless self Young married folks have a right to privacy, a chance to fight things out all by themselves Your Grandpa and Grandma lived with me and Martha when he was first married and looked like there never was anything but trouble."

"But you haven't made trouble, Dad darling," Faith protested, her hands going up to grip his "You've been oil on troubled waters many a time."

"Thank you, daughter And now I want to tell you that Junior won't hear of me paying any board, no matter how much I want to. Says he's getting rich with that automobile accessories business of his. And he says he's going right on paying me rent for the house—sixty dollars a month, you know. So I wanted you to know that I'll be in a position to pay Joy's board Do you think ten dollars a week will be all right? Course I never can repay you for having been a mother to the poor little tad ever since she was born"

"Oh, Dad, I wish you wouldn't feel that you have to pay for Joy," she protested

"I reckon, with Bob's business like it is, he'll be glad to have the ten dollars," Jim Lane answered

"What do you mean, Dad? I don't understand — Have you heard him say anything?" A chill of fear shuddered along her nerves. Was that the reason Bob had been so silent, so preoccupied lately? Why hadn't he told her?

"Oh, just bad times generally," her father hastened to reassure her, but she detected a note of flattering insincerity in his voice, every modulation of which she knew so well.

"You're staying till after dinner, aren't you, Dad?" she asked, beating back the fear and trying to speak naturally "Bob's gone to the station to meet Joy, you know. She'd feel wretched if her Dad wasn't here to listen to her excited tale of camp life, when she's been gone all summer."

"Course I'll be here for dinner, honey. I guess I'm more anxious to see my baby than she is to see me But—one more thing, Faith. And don't take it amiss: don't let Cherry and the baby take up so much of your time that you'll forget you've got a good-looking husband who needs a lot of attention—if you don't want him to look for merit elsewhere Now, where in Sam Hill are them old carpet slippers of mine?"

NEXT: Joy's keen, childish eyes instantly see something is wrong.

METHODS OF CHURCH ASSAILED BY PASTOR

Says Business Men Have Soured on Religion Because of Mass Emotionalism

Racine — (AP) — The employment of mass emotionalism and the "clap trap of revivalistic methods" has done much to sour many business men in religion, the Rev. Alfred Newberry, rector of the church of the Atonement Chicago, told a conference of Episcopal laymen gathered here Saturday.

The conference is composed of business men from Illinois and Wisconsin who are seeking to determine why men generally are not interested in religion and how to meet such a condition.

"Evangelism is the natural state of the Christian unless he lives in a vacuum," the speaker declared. "He can no more resist sharing his spiritual resources than he can refrain from seeing things while his eyes are open. It is as natural as breathing."

Inhibitions and the Elmer Gantry style of religion often prevent men from taking a larger interest in or speaking to others of things spiritual, asserted Mr. Newberry.

"Recollections of a church row sometimes prevent the business men from any more than lukewarm interest in religion," he said. "Or adults may have said while his young ears were cocked something about hypocritical church goers. The man who saw a church sign bearing the words, 'open for rest, meditation and prayer,' and scrawled the additional word 'graft' on it, obviously had had an unpleasant experience or association which would prove a barrier to any ordinary religious approach.

"While it is possible for a salesman to stimulate an enthusiasm in the commodity he is selling, it is both insufficient and undesirable that religious experience should be transmitted by one who is not vitally interested in it. You cannot share what you do not possess.

"If religion be that which gives significance to life, it is important both to a man and his world that he bestir himself to be a better medium of it. He will eschew mass emotionalism and the clap trap of revivalistic methods. He will not seek to advertise religion into a false popularity or sell it by the methods of high pressure salesmanship. He will honestly evaluate its reality in himself and them study what is the beam in his eye that makes such a poor agent of him, and the mote in his brother's that so obscures his vision. The man who cannot do this, should admit that he has no belief in his religion, for to be a Christian is to be an evangelist."

ROAD COMMISSION'S CHARGES ARE DENIED

Former Commissioner Says State Ordered no Vibrolithic Work in 1925

Madison—(AP)—No vibrolithic paving material was used in 1925 on Wisconsin roads over which the state highway commission had complete control, says a statement made public this morning by John T. Donaghey, former state highway commissioner.

His statement is in reply to one issued by the state highway commission of Sept. 20, in which the commission denied charges made by a few Wisconsin newspapers that it had been unduly influenced by the Wisconsin Vibrolithic company of Milwaukee, and stated further that it has followed the same policy a. that pursued by the former state highway engineer in 1925 and 1926. The commission claimed that in 1925 approximately 15 miles of road were paved with Vibrolithic, 10 miles in 1926 and approximately 12 miles in 1927.

Mr. Donaghey denies that the state highway commission approved the use of the vibrolithic paving material in the construction of state roads, saying that where such material was used it was in cities where the determination of the type of material to be used was generally in the hands of the city council, or on county contracts where there was an insistent demand for Vibrolithic from the local county highway commission, and the state money involved was only an insignificant percentage of the total.

Not one square yard of Vibrolithic was specified in any federal aid or other state project when the state provided all the funds, until the Blue Mound Road job was let Sept. 6, 1927, Mr. Donaghey says.

Vibrolithic is a compacted concrete paving material, which is more expensive than machine tamped plain concrete.

The same crowd will be at 12 Cors. Sun. You are invited.

Less Than A Thousand Dollars

Two new models, a sedan and brougham, have been added to the Paige line at still lower prices, making a Paige six available for the first time for less than a thousand dollars.

These cars are of the traditional quality that established the Paige reputation for performance and endurance. They are attractive, fast, comfortable; and they bring a new economy to Paige ownership.

The introduction of these new models follows the substantial improvements on all Paige sixes and eights, and lower prices on ten of the twenty models, announced only two months ago. Paige prices now range from $995 to $2665, f. o. b. Detroit. We invite your inspection.

THE BOOK PAGE

Beecher And His Times Is Book Theme

The world never has quite decided about Henry Ward Beecher. Kings and presidents honored him while the New York Times arraigned his "persistent hypocrisy and falsehood," and as Dana of the Sun scored him with even more ruthless severity.

Paxton Hibben has gone through newspapers and records, and his "Henry Ward Beecher: An American Portrait," published by Doran, is intended to make the preached reveil himself through his own utterances.

Hibben has psycho-analyzed Beecher; brought out in Beecher speakings and writings his desires, his ambitions, his strength and his weaknesses. But Hibben has not sought to belittle him. He makes Beecher a fascinating character and a great man, in the long run. He catches his greatness as well as his inconsistencies and vanities.

WE AREN'T SO BAD

He also paints a convincing picture of the life of that day. It is comforting to learn from him that we moderns aren't so bad after all. In the Victorian era there was drunkenness, bribery, corruption and scandal. Probably the most sensational scandal of the 19th century was Beecher's episode with Mrs. Tilton, which got as much space in the papers as the Hall-Mills case or any of our really crack trials.

At the Beecher trial were senators, congressmen, foreign ambassadors, judges, society women and distinguished clergymen. Even James A. Garfield was a spectator.

Hibben, a newspaper writer for years, is a man of considerable background, having had diplomatic experience in Mexico, Russia and South America, as well as years of reporting.

It is very interesting to note the effect of popular literary successes on the autograph market. Last year Carl Sandburg's Abraham Lincoln caused an almost unprecedented interest in every form of Lincolniana.

This year Emil Ludwig's Napoleon (published by Boni & Liveright) has aroused, both in England and America, the greatest demand for Napoleonana that has ever been known. Dealers are returning from Europe, their trunks bulging with every possible item and from all indications the demand will far exceed even the generous supply of material that will be available this autumn.

The famous explorer, Sir Harry H. Johnston, is dead. He traveled extensively in Africa and wrote many books about his travels and explorations. In 1923 he published "The Story of My Life" (Bobbs-Merrill) in which he recounts engagingly his adventures in the far-off corners of the world to which his wanderlust took him. Sir Harry was a genial soul who had the "love of life." "The Story of My Life" is illustrated with photographs and reproductions of paintings by the author.

On a list of the "ablest preachers in the United States" in the periodical called "Church Business" appear the names of Dr. William E. Barton, the Lincoln biographer and Congregational minister and his son, Bruce Barton, an advertising man. Bruce Barton, however, is perhaps better known as the author of "The Man Nobody Knows" and "The Book Nobody Knows." His new book to be published soon is What can a man Believe?.

TEACHERS EXPECTED TO JOIN ASSOCIATION

A. G. Meating, county superintendent of schools, Friday sent out registrations of 51 Outagamie-co rural teachers as members of the Wisconsin Teacher's association. This is the first of a group of memberships, according to Mr. Meating. He declared that he expected the county would have 100 per cent representation in the association before the end of October. There are 181 rural teachers and all are expected to join the association.

MOVE OVER

By E. Pettit

REVIEW BY ELEANOR WING

In some way or other, the younger generation, our better classes, and the idle rich get into a good proportion of each year's fiction. All three elements--the most reckless of the young generation, the best of the better classes and the very, very idle rich, are to be found in MOVE OVER, by E. Pettit published recently by J. H. Sears & Company. Palm Beach, Europe, New York — every pleasure ground known to money is the setting. And the plot is only the tale of how fabulous wealth can destroy.

One hates to admit it. But the story is a faithfully drawn sketch of Palm Beach life. A grim, sophisticated social philosophy pervades it, with its touchstone—"maybe you can afford to be seen with the wrong people. Frankly I can't." The wealthy Sheila saps the self respect and vitality and dignity from her husband — the son of an Oshkosh postman. Infidelity, obscenity, boredom and snobbishness are the fundamentals of living, in this stagnating world of too much money. There is only one moment when the reader is conscious of something wholesome in the air—that moment comes in a description of Daphne—Daphne, "leading dignity to living, serving bacon and eggs."

But, of course, the sense of unreality keeps the book from disturbing our simpler illusions too much. So few of us need to worry about the disintegrating effects of too much money.

We haven't it—never will have it, and so we aren't so upset about the rapid decline in morals it may bring —that is, if MOVE OVER tells the true story. Many wise observations make the book worth reading even though it is hard not to feel that one is reading a fairy story upside down, with the inevitable ending "they did not live happily ever after."

One of the best scenes in the book is the 'court scene' where royalty takes its ease, because only the blue-bloods of many countries are there to see. The queen fits in very aptly—the queen who had that stiff unease which passes the world over as dignity. She is the only one present in that room of rococo individuals who is assured of her position and blood. But the others are infinitely more natural. However, the author admits that even the queen's royal logic 'came to conclusions even as yours and mine...unhampered by evidence."

One little trick of the writer ought to be especially commented upon — the panorama method of portraying a large group of people. She conveys the impression of covering the thoughts—if they really can be called thoughts—and appearance and convictions of a multitude by using veritable tabloids—small paragraphs, unconnected by any word or sign, but as colorful as the trappings in one of Lorenzo the Magnificant's procession.

By the same means, she tells her readers in a subtle way that there is no consecutive thought or action, possible, anyway among her very unheroic characters.

"I think all Pekes are illnatured."

"Yes, they are. I keep that lazy maid of mine just because she doesn't object to Nico's biting her."

"The husband doubles with Nico." Flossie vouchsafed. And following hard on the heels of something frivolous and unimportant comes a wiser saying—

"It's an extraordinary fact," said the novelist, "that everybody of importance dates from the achievement of somebody of no importance."

MOVE OVER is a fashionable book. It will have a large sale because of its ultra smartness. But it will do a great deal more good than many of its kind—because it has the eyebrow lifting atmosphere. One feels that there is a very subtle satire—or at least sarcasm—underlying the extravagant pictures which the author is drawing, with perfect accuracy. And the ultimate reaction to the whole story is 'I would rather live in Oshkosh than in Palm Beach.' Or as Chris said—"No I'll begin my poverty in New York."

STAGE And SCREEN

EPIC PARAMOUNT PRODUCTION TAKES TEDDY ROOSEVELT'S REGIMENT TO CUBA

"The Rough Riders" is the story of the Rough Riders and of that period in Roosevelt's career when he sprang from a position of comparative unknown to one of international fame, when he became not only the idol of his regiment but of a nation. It is the story of '98, of San Juan Hill and La Quisana and of a regiment that has gone down into history as one of the most spectacular fighting units the world has ever known. And through this story there flows another—a quaint, old-fashioned love story between two boys and a girl, simple entertaining, pleasing little story of the Texas boy, Charles Emmett Mack and the Texas girl, Mary Astor, who only begin to understand life when the war breaks out and of the Eastern dude, Charles Farrell, who comes into their lives as a distracting factor. Too, it is the story of Sheriff Hells Bells (Noah Beery) and his rollicking prisoner Happy Joe (George Bancroft) in which Happy Joe breaks jail to enlist and the Sheriff follows to grab him when the war is over.

Others in the cast include Frank Hopper as Roosevelt, Col. Fred Lindsay as Leonard Wood and Fred Kohler as Sergeant Stanton.

"The Rough Riders" comes to Fischer's Appleton Theatre for 3 days engagement starting Monday. See it. You're sure to be thrilled!

BABE RUTH BLASTS HOMER NO. 60 TO BREAK OWN RECORD

8,000 Fans Thrilled As Bambino Leans On Ball Hurled By Tom Zachary

Strong Finish After Weakening at Midseason Gives King of Swat New Mark

New York—(AP)—The baseball season has ended sucessfully for Babe Ruth In the next to the last game for the Yanks in the American League season, Babe produced number 60 Friday establishing a new record for home runs in a single season.

While some 8,000 fans got a thrill, Ruth crashed the ball into the bleachers to erase his old mark of 59, first achieved by himself in 1921 which he tied on Thursday.

Babe had been pulling for the new mark for six years. The veteran pitcher Zachary of the Senators had the "distinction" of hurling the ball which made the dream come true. It happened in the eighth inning with one strike and one ball on Babe. Col. Ruppert paid more than $1,000 for each home run as the idol of the baseball fans rates $70,000 per year.

Since 1915 when he started bludgeoning with the Boston Red Sox Ruth has patterned out 416 of his mammoth wallops.

This is his record with the Yanks 1920—54 homers; 1921—59; 1922—35; 1923—41; 1924—46; 1025—25; 1926—47; to date in 1927—60.

BUCS STILL MUST WIN TO TAKE FLAG

Reds, Who Halted Cards Thursday, Pull Same Trick on Loop Leaders

Blocked in the first skirmish with the Reds from slipping into the National League champion harbor the Pirates were still waiting Saturday to breeze over the finish line.

After tossing the Cubs for four straight set backs, the Corsairs engaged in the first of a three game series at Cincinnati Friday and lost, 2 to 1.

ONE OUT OF TWO

Pittsburgh has two games to play and needs but one victory to take the banner even though the second-place Cardinals capture two remaining contests. St. Louis loafed Friday. Two reversals for the Bushmen and two triumphs for the Cardinals would throw the campaign into a tie.

Brooklyn pushed the Giants out of the running by whacking out a 10 to 5 victory.

In a battle of the tail-enders the Braves whipped the Phillies, 12 to 2.

The Yankees tuned in on victory number 109 off the Senators, 4 to 2, Babe Ruth's 60th circuit wallop with Koenig on base breaking a 2-all tie, and shattering Ruth's own record of 59 home runs in a season.

Chicago swept a double header with the Tigers by 5 to 4 and 4 to 1.

The Browns split a twin bill with the Indians, annexing the closing struggle, 5 to 4, after dropping the opener by the same score Boston's fray with the Mackmen was postponed.

BLUES DESIRE NO SCOUTING TREATY

Lawrence Authorities Ask All Foes to Agree Not to Use Scouts

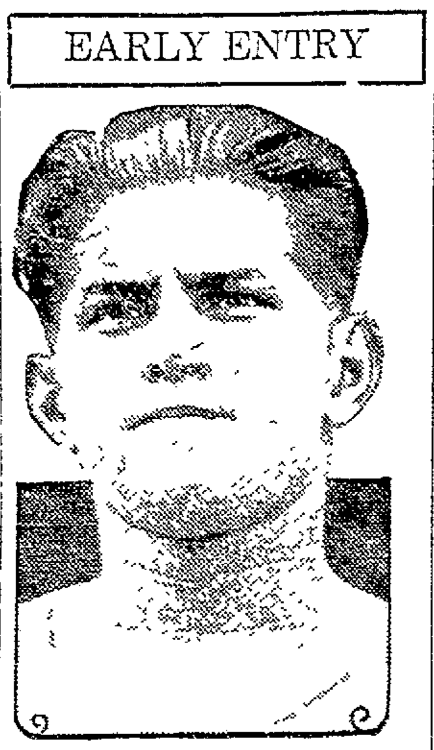

Every college which plays Lawrence on the gridiron this year received a letter from the local school the last week, asking for a "no scouting" agreement. As yet only Carleton college of Northfield, Minn., which plays a Midwest conference game at Whiting field on Oct. 8, has responded with the other schools evidently deliberating the problem Carleton and Lawrence have agreed not to scout each other.

Other schools receiving the request from Blue authorities are Northwestern, Beloit, Carroll and Ripon, all Wisconsin college and Lake Forest of Illinois, a Wisconsin-Illinois conference member. Coach Mark S Catlin of the local crew was the originator of the no scouting idea in this part of the country. He made a plea for the idea last year, declaring scouting made the game a battle of coaches off the field, not of students on the field as it should be.

MARQUETTE FROSH WALK 3 MILES TO BLUE GAME

When Lawrence and Marquette clashed Saturday afternoon on the gridiron, the freshmen of the Milwaukee institution had to walk three miles to attend the game. It was in keeping with a Marquette University tradition. The task was not especially difficult, however, as the school is said to be about three miles from the athletic field.

APPLETON IDLE IN FOX VALLEY LEAGUE SUNDAY

The Appleton ball club of the Fox River league will be idle this weekend, according to the local management. The team drew a bye and every effort to card an outside game or make up a postponed league tilt was unsuccessful. Therefore the local athletes will get their second successive Sunday of rest and will be idle three weeks before playing a game.

Three other tilts are carded unless rain interferes which is very likely this week Neenah invades Oshkosh; Green Bay is at Menasha; and Kimberly invades plays at Kaukauna against Les Smith's boys.

CLASSY FOOTBALL EXPECTED AT BAY, BEAR GRID BATTLE

No Love Lost Between Star teams of National Pro Loop Which Clash at Bay

Green Bay—A super brand of football will be on tap Sunday afternoon at the City stadium when the Chicago Bears and Green Bay Packers stage another one of their grudge battles, the like of which have been high spots in pro football history ever since 1921 Hostilities will get under way promptly at 2:15.

For some unknown reason, a Chicago Bear game is always different than any other contest on the Packer schedule. There is no sympathy wasted on either side and even the spectators seem to growl a bit more. Sunday's clash won't be any exception to the rule

NEITHER TEAM BEATEN

Neither the Bears or Packers have bit the dust this season. The Chicagoans brushed aside La Grange, Ill., by a fat count and then took the Cardinals into camp last Sunday, 9 to 0 The Packers walloped Milwaukee 34 to 0, chased Dayton home on the short end of a 14 to 0 score and nosed out a 12-7 victory over Benny Friedman and his Cleveland club. It is the prevailing opinion in postgraduate football circles that the winner of the Packer-Bear fracas will have a whole lot to say about possession of the 1927 championship flag.

The Bears are coming here with an aggregation of football luminaries and their lineup is studded with all-American selections. The Chicagoans have a club that knows pro football from A to Z as Chuck Kassell, Illinois, 1927, is the only member of the squad who has not seen at least a year of pro footballing.

VOSS WITH BEARS

The visitors will have two dozen players in moleskins. They have nine backs, five ends, five tackles, three guards and a pair of centers. Tillie Voss, who played with the Packers several years ago, is holding down a wing position for the Chicagoans. Clem Neacy, Milwaukee star, is doing his stuff at the other extremity of the forward line.

Dave Healy, all-American pro tackle for three years: Brute Trafton, giant center, McMillen, the heavyweight center, and Buckler, who was Packer linemen, at Alabama, are among the huskies in the Bears' front wall.

Paddy Driscoll, the grand old man of pro football, is the ace of the Bruins' backfield. The former Northwestern star has been a thorn in the side of the Packers for six years. Paddy is a triple-threat footballer and when it comes to field goal kicking, Driscoll doesn't have to take his hat off to any player in Joe Carr's circuit. Paddy has kicked at least a half dozen field goals against the Packers and nearly every one of them were of the 'pinch' variety.

SENN AWFUL FAST

However, Driscoll isn't the only shining light behind the line for the Bears. Halfback Senn was one of the sensations of the 1926 season. He is said to even be faster than Bloodgood, the Cleveland flash. Then there is the Sternamen brothers, Dutch and Joe. Larry Walquist, Milt Romney, Red Bryan, White and Knop. Every one of these carriers are yardage makers

The Packers are in good shape to meet this outfit of football luminaries. Capt. Lambeau and his gridders have put in a stiff week of practice and the club is keyed up to high pitch. With but one or two exceptions, every Green Bay player is in the pink of condition. The gridders, who reported during the past ten days are feeling right at home in the line up and it will be possible to put in fresh men without weakening the battle front a single bit.

RICKARD AGREES THAT RADIO SATISFIES FANS

New York — (AP) — Although he thinks radio broadcasting of the Dempsey-Tunney fight at Chicago retthat broadcasting of big fights ought to continue to satisfy a demand of millions of fans.

The promoter said broadcasting authorities estimated 100,000,000 persons throughout the world attended the fight "by air." The sale of seats seemed to indicate that the man of moderate means preferred to buy a radio set rather than spend money to attend the fight Rickard said.

Several contributions of 10 cents and $1 were received from fans who listened in on the broadcasting, he said.

Hollywood, Calif—Tommy Hughes, Cleveland defeated Harry Goldstein Boston (10)

Wilkesbarre, Pa.—Tiger Flowers Atlanta, defeated Tete Latzo, Scranton, Pa. (10).

AFTER THE BALL WAS OVER!

Poor ol' Babe Ruth, he's goin' back! Can't hit no more, nor nothin'.

The big slugger, who experts had all slated for the minors a few years back when he hit only 25 homers due to lack of condition, quarrels with owners and umps and illness, came back with a vengeance this year, probably inspired by the example of his younger teammate and homermate, Lou Gehrig, to break his own mark set in 1921. He got 59 homers that year and experts said it would stand at least ten more seasons. But it was not to be. The babe made it No. 60 Friday, with a game to go, after a spurt from a poor midseason that made the finish all the more glorious.

Billy Evans, famous ump and sports writer, claims rules lost Babe at least 10 more this year. Formerly when a ball was hit out of the park if it was fair when it went over the fence, it was fair. Now it must be fair when it disappears from view behind the fence.

Plenty Of Class Among Rival Center Fielders

BY BILLY EVANS

There is plenty of class among the center fielders of the five probable series contenders — the brilliant Earl Combs of the New York Yankees, the sensational Lloyd Waner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, the veteran star, Edd Roush of the New York Giants, and the slugging 'Hack' Wilson of the Chicago Cubs.

The St. Louis Cardinals, alone of the pennant chasing five, have an unsettled condition in the all important position of center field. Taylor Douthit, who stood out last year as one of the best in the majors at that position, slumped badly at the bat this year, falling off over 50 points and, as a result, has done considerable bench warming, while Holm and others filled in.

Earl Combs of the Yankees bats left and throws right handed. On a team with many outstanding stars like Ruth and Gehrig, the king and near-king of swat, the real value of Combs to the New York Americans is often lost sight of. Combs is a truly great ball player. He has only one fault, an ordinary arm, if that can be classed as a serious weakness. At that, this year he is throwing better than ever. Combs is the best lead-off man in the American League. You must keep him off the bases if you are to beat the Yanks. Aside from being hard to pitch to, thereby drawing many bases on balls, he is a fine batsman and very fast. He has hit around .350 all year.

Edd Roush of the New York Giants bats and throws left handed. For years he vied with Tris Speaker for being rated the greatest center fielder in the game. A veteran of 13 years' service, time is beginning to tell and, while he has done a good job in the field this year, he has fallen off in his batting. He gave poise to the Giants' outfield, however, the very thing McGraw desired when he got him from Cincinnati.

"Hack" Wilson of the Chicago Cubs bats right handed and throws the same way. His excellent play, his timely batting in particular, helped greatly in keeping the Cubs in the race and making that club the dark horse of the National League. His specialty is extra base hitting, featuring home runs. Despite his bulk, he is a very good fielder.

Lloyd Waner of the Waner boys of the Pittsburgh Pirates bats left handed and throws right handed. This young man has been the most talked about first year performer in the majors in many moons. In the spring he was hardly given a chance to make the grade, yet he won from the great Kiki Cuyler the center field berth on the Pirates. He is fast, has hit over .300 all year and has been getting on the bases regularly, so his brother Paul could drive him over.

Douthit and Holm, either of whom may play center field should St. Louis win the pennant in the National, bat and throw right handed. Both are mighty clever and that position will be well taken care of if the Cards should get into the series.

Earl Combs is the best center fielder in the American League this year. I would give him first place. Lloyd Waner would get second, Roush third, Wilson fourth and the St. Louis entry fifth.

BIG TEN ELEVENS PLAY ON WET GRIDS

All Squads Play Hosts in Practice Battles but Indiana

Chicago—(AP)—The Western Conference with an exception or two had water soaked gridirons for the inaugural Saturday of the 1927 football season.

All the Bib Ten teams were hosts except Indiana which was in Lexington to meet Kentucky in a game expected to be far from easy for the green Hoosier team.

With Cornell College of Mt. Vernon, Iowa, as its foe, Coach Thistlethwaite's 1927 University of Wisconsin football team will open its season. The Badgers defeated the Iowa team last year, 38 to 0, but Coach Barker of Cornell promises a better showing this year.

Chicago had Oklahoma a tough nut for the season's starter while Northwestern's opponent, South Dakota, came out of the northwest to help start the Big Ten year.

A brave little team from Bradley Tech, Peoria, Ill., ventured to Champaign to take on Coach Zuppke's newest Illinois eleven. Bradley has won 27 consecutive games.

Minnesota, with the all-American Herb Joesting forming the warhead of an attack which is expected to be one of the most formidable in the conference, was to play North Dakota.

Michigan, with eight veterans of its championship team of last year, opened against Ohio Wesleyan while Ohio State with a speedy backfield played Wittenberg.

Purdue sent a semi-veteran team against Depauw, its traditional opening foe. Iowa began its season with Monmouth across the field.

Outside the Big Ten football, critics were waiting to see what Knute Rockne's Notre Dame team would do under the new rules governing the shift, a favorite maneuver of the Irish, as they faced Coe college in their opening game.

"NO PARKING" SIGN IN WHITING FIELD

Old Parking Place Now Is 2 Practice Grids; Parking Nearby

The parking of automobiles in Whiting Athletic field by fans who attend the Lawrence college football games, and other athletic contests at the local field, will not be permitted this year, according to announcement Saturday from the business office of the college.

The change has been necessitated by the fact that the area set aside for parking of machines in the past two years has been made over into two practice football fields.

Free parking space, however, will be provided in the area west of the gasoline filling station at the corner of John and South River sts, just a short distance from Whiting field, it is announced

OLD ORANGE ATHLETES ON WAYLAND GRID TEAM

Two former Appleton high school athletes are playing regular backfield positions on the Wayland academy football team at Beaver Dam this year. Al Carlson, 1926 Appleton high school end and Frank Cookson 1926 center and track man, are holding down the Wayland [illegible] Al is playing quarterback and Frank is at left half.

Al, besides playing end last fall, played on the Orange cage squad the winter before. He was lost to the grid squad at the end of the first semester, when he became 21. Frank played on the Orange cage squad with his brother and was a high jumper on the track squad while Al was a sprinter. Frank moved to Fond du Lac and won his letter there in two sports last year. He played forward in basketball for the Red and White after he became eligible at the end of the first semester and won a second letter as the best high jumper on the track squad.

STATISTIC CLOCK FEATURE OF GAMES

New Clock Erected Near Scoreboard for Badger-Cornell Battle

Madison—(AP)—Features of the opening football game of the University of Wisconsin this season, with Cornell college of Mt. Vernon, Ia., will be the new clock near the score board and the crowd, according to the athletic department officials.

When the crowd wants to know "How much time is left" "Time for a smash to a possible touchdown, or for an attempt at a field goal?" all it needs to do is to look at a high clock-face, visible from all parts of the Randall field.

The clock face is marked off from 15 to 0, each minute divided in half. The clock's single hand points to the exact time remaining to play at any particular time in any quarter

The clock is operated by a side line observer who, with a knife switch makes a contact closing an electric circuit operating the indicating hand when the ball is snapped and breaks the contract, stopping the movement of the hand, when the ball is downed.

The second feature, the crowd, is expected to be attracted because the Cornell game presents practically the only early season glimpse of the crimson warriors. Only one open practice has been provided for the Badger fans. After this game Wisconsin goes to Kansas, so that the Badger fandom must wait the coming of the Wolverines from Michigan to see their team in action.

Because of these facts the followers of the Big Ten gridiron teams are expected to flock in great numbers to Camp Randall this Saturday. There will be an open sale of tickets, with no reservations.

From the standpoint of Coach Thistlethwaite the Cornell tils will be an experiment of the relative value of his pupils in their various positions, he being concerned mainly with the performance and not with the outcome of the clash with the Iowans.

Inclement weather early this week in no way daunted the character of the practice of Camp Randall, where a half-hundred men are learning the strategy they will employ against Capt. Leland Wilson, all-western selection and his fighting Cornellians.

Although defeated by the Cardinal last season, 38 to 0, Cornell has held one of the most feared seats in the Midwest Collegiate conference, winning the title for two consecutive years and only falling to third in 1926 due to lack of material.

APPLETON BOXER LOSES IN OSHKOSH

Earl Rogers Shaded by Spike Kelly in Four Rounds; Card Pleases

Earl Rogers, Appleton boxer, was shaded by Spike Kelly, Oshkosh, in four rounds of fast boxing in the opening bout on the first indoor card of the Oshkosh American legion for Kelly weighed 138 and Rogers 135 and the Ohkosh boy earned a slight shade in practically every round.

Louis Stadler, Oshkosh, provided more joy for the home fans by knocking out Buddy Britton, Chicago, in the third round of the second go. Both weighed 118 pounds Joey Thomas, Oshkosh, shaded Al DeRoso St. Paul, in the semi-windup. Thomas weighed 124½ and DeRose 125.

To complete the Oshkosh triumphal evening. Johnny Hopfinger of Chicago, former Oshkosh mit star, knocked out Eddie Nemo, St. Paul in the ninth round of a scheduled ten-round bout after scoring three knockdowns before the sleep producer. Johnny weighed 124 and Eddie 128. The fight was a "wow," the best of the card and the large crowd of spectators that attended, were pleased with the show. Several attended from Appleton. Hopfinger was said to have greatly improved since his residence in Oshkosh last winter.

NEENAH GIRLS CHAMPS ROLL AS KOCH GLASSES

Members of the Chero-Cola girls bowling team, which finished first in the Neenah City League last year, have reorganized for the 1927-28 season under the name Koch's Glasses. The team will be sponsored by A. Lester Koch, Appleton and Neenah optometrist. Its average last year was 170.

Members of the team are Miss Cora Blenker, captain, 169 ave.; Miss Eva Jensen, 173 Miss Agnes Enfer, 159; Mrs. Walter Fuhs, 167; Mrs. H. C. Farmakes, 157. All are scratch bowlers at 150 and three are scratch keglers at 165. The team had a league handicap of 15 last year and it finished high in the state womens' tourney.

It was the first ladies pin team in Neenah when the idea started there two years ago. The league in which it rolls has grown from one team to six since then, bowling every Wednesday night. Members are Koch's Glasses, Valley Inn Buicks, Leffingwells Drugs, Tri-City Nash, Lucky Strikes and Kelly Tires.

OLD APPLETON TEACHER COACHES NORMAL FROSH

Robert "Bob" Grant, manual training teacher at Appleton high school last year, who recently accepted a position in the industrial education department of the Oshkosh normal school, is coaching the Normal frosh grid squad. The normal school is using a freshman rule for the first time this year as it was adopted by the conference last spring.

Grant, a four-letter gridman at the Normal school before his teaching days, and a cager also, had assisted local coaches with basketball and with training during his teaching career here. He was an enthusiastic backer of Appleton high sports. His team meets the Lawrence frosh eleven here on Oct. 15.

College 1927 Captains

JOESTING OF MINNESOTA

Minneapolis, Minn. — Will Herb Joesting, the tall, blond captain of the Minneapolis team, show All-America form again this year?

The odds are that he will.

Joesting, whose ability makes it useless to play especially for him, should have an even greater year this season because of the fact that the Minnesota team will be much stronger.

They were, before the season started, favorites to cop the championship of the Big Ten.

The Gopher captain first hit the football glare when in high school and left little time to elapse as a freshman before he was hailed as a coming star.

As a sopohomore, he gave further promise of future greatness and this greatness was achieved last season. Just how good he was can be seen from the almost unanimous pick for All-America fullback. He can do everything—and how.

Joesting is one of the largest photographed grid stars in the nation. He reports for practice late every afternoon and keeps so busy while at practice that cameramen have to "shoot" him on the run.

BEST BALLCLUB MAY LOSE WORLD SERIES

Bill Killifer, Star in Both Major Leagues, Gives Opinion

KILLIFER WISDOM

The best team doesn't always win in a world series

When the Yanks are hitting, no pitcher can stop 'em.

Pittsburgh is the best club in the National League.

Rogers Hornsby is one of the game's greatest leaders.

Pitching and the breaks decide most world series.

The Yanks, at times, are as bad as they usually are good.

Lady Luck helped the Cardinals to win over the Yankees.

Major league pennant winners are, as a rule, evenly matched.

Dissension kept Pittsburgh from winning pennant last year.

Hornsby got everything out of Cardinals to put them over.

BY BILLY EVANS

Bill Killifer, in his prime, was one of the best catchers I ever umpired back of.

Bill Killifer, as manager of the Chicago Cubs for a number of years, proved he was not only a great catcher but also a very capable leader.

Bill Killifer, last season as first assistant to Manager Rogers Hornsby of St. Louis and directly in charge of the pitching, proved his versatility in a double role by lending valuable assistance to the Cardinals in the winning of the National League pennant, then the world series.

Bill Killifer began his big league career as a member of the St. Louis Browns. His playing days over, after having spent the best of his years in the National League, he is once again with the Browns as assistant to Manager Dan Howley.

It is obvious that Bill Killifer probably knows the strength of the National and American Leagues as well as anyone connected with the game. It was only natural that I should go to him when seeking an opinion relative to the coming world series.

"How good a ball club do you think the Yanks are? Were the Cardinals of last year a better ball club than the New York Americans? What do you think of the coming world series?" I asked.

"The best ball club doesn't always win the pennant and the world series, although as a rule class will tell in the long run of 154 games," he replied.

"The Cardinals won the pennant in the National League last season and then the world series. I was a member of that club. Yet, I do not believe the Cardinals were the best club in the National League last season nor am I convinced it was a better club than the Yankees.

"Pittsburgh was the best ball club in the National League last year, as it is this. Dissension put the Pirates out of it and gave the Cardinals the big chance. Perfectly managed by Rogers Hornsby, who got everything out of his players, the Cardinals were a sort of team of destiny.

"I scouted the Yankees for the world series with the Cardinals and I know the club was below form in the series. The Cards were at top form. Therefore in those particular seven games St. Louis was the best ball club. I am frank to admit we had a wholesome respect for New York and were more than pleased over the result.

"This year I have had a chance to watch the Yankees closely. Our ball club, the Browns, won only one game out of 22 from them so, no doubt, I always saw the New York club at its best.

"If the Yankees are in a hitting mood when the series is on, no pitching in the world will stop 'em. If the club is in a slump and pressing, it isn't hard to beat.

"Pittsburgh is unquestionably the best club in the National League, the Yanks are far away the strongest combination in the American. Pittsburgh can offer curve ball pitching that will make plenty of trouble for New York if the team isn't hitting. And usually, if Ruth isn't hitting, the club isn't.

"The Yankees comprise a club of many moods, most of them good, some very bad. When the Yanks look bad, no club in the league, not even the lowly Browns or Red Sox look worse. But when the club is hitting, all pitchers look alike. Just call the fire department if you want to squelch them quickly.

"This series, like most world series, strikes me as a toss-up. The breaks usually decide the outcome. Remember how we got three unearned runs in one inning of the final game to beat Hoyt, 3-2, and win the championship?

"Regardless of who wins the National League pennant, the Yanks will find plenty of opposition and must be at the top of their game to win."

WINNER OF MONDAY GO IN MILWAUKEE MEETS JOE SANGOR

Joey Consents to Box Either Billy Bonillas of Joey Clein at 126 Pounds

Milwaukee — Brother Lew Sangor has condescended to permit Brother Joey to box the winner of the Billy Bonillas—Joey Clein match at the Empress Theatre arena next Monday night, especially Bonillas, whom Joey knows can make the stipulated featherweight limit of 126 pounds.

That is what Brother Lew disclosed in a talk before the M & M club Thursday, and Sheik Lew, also stated that he would not ask more than 37½ per cent for Brother Joey's services. With the state taking out 5 per cent it will make it easy for the promoters to get some good boy like Bonillas or Clein, perhaps Johnny Hill or Eddie Shea for 20 per cent.

The important part is that Mr. Sangor will let his protege box here so that is that.

Now Bonillas and Clein are training their heads off in an effort to be as fit as possible for their scrap Monday night, for a fight with Sangor for either one will mean a nice bit of change which will come in handy during snowball weather.

The clever little Mexican featherweight gave the fans several thrills when he boxed his manager—Nilly McCann —at the gymnasium. His blocking and footwork was splendid and Joey Clein will have to work fast to land the black haired lad from the west.

Great interest is being taken in the prelims, especially the Jack Murphy-Matt Ciciancolo six round bout and the companion match between Mike Ciciancolo and George Mavis of Chicago.

DEMPSEY CHEERED BY GOTHAM CROWD

New York—(AP)—Although he failed to regain the heights of pugilism Jack Dempsey is as popular as ever in New York, the home of champion Gene Tunney.

Stepping into the arena at Madison Square Garden Friday night just before Tom Heeney of New Zealand heavyweight, knocked out Jim Maloney of Boston in the first round Dempsey was given thundering applause by some 13,000 admirers.

Jack and his wife, Estelle, appeared at the ringside as the principals of the main bout climbed to the platform.

The sudden finish of the bout came as a surprise to Dempsey and the crowd. Heeney landed a solid right hand jolt to the jaw sending the Bostonian to the canvass to be counted out after one minute, 17 seconds of fighting.

TOLEDO WINS OPENER IN MINOR TITLE FIGHT

Buffalo, N. Y.—(AP)—Five hundred Toledo fans followed their champions of the American Association here Saturday hopeful of seeing their team register, another victory against the Buffalo Internationals in the second game of the little world series.

Buffalso will be the battleground for the third game Sunday after which the teams return to Toledo Tuesday to resume the series until one team has won five games.

The American Association champions took the first game 5 to 2. It was the grand old man. Bobby Veach who stole the show Bobby smote a triple to start two tallies around in the second inning, and on his next journey in the third, smashed a long home run with two mates on board.

HAGENLACHER LEADS IN WORLD CUE MEET

ORANGE FLAVOR POP IS WIDELY FAVORED BY SODA DRINKERS

Food Value of Soda and Sugar Used Is Needed in Person's Daily Diet

"Most persons have a failing for orange flavored pop or soda drinks," says W. Hamm of the W. Hamm and Son bottling works at 622 N. North Division-st. "Many also like lemon and lime drinks during the summer months but as cool weather approaches these latter two fall off. And in regard to the orange flavor, that particular thing is true throughout the trade—orange soda is the favorite."

Speaking of food values in soda, Mr. Hamm recalled a statement made recently by Dr. Skinner, assistant chief, bureau of chemistry, United States department of agriculture, at Washington, D. C., when he stated that the average man needs about 3,000 calories in his daily diet and that a half pint bottle of soda furnishes a goodly part of that amount.

In regard to the sugar consumed in bottled carbonated beverages throughout the United States Dr Skinner said the "consumption of bottled carbonated beverages in the United States is approximately 10,000,000,000 half pint bottles annually. This represents a consumption of about 125,000 tons of sugar or enough to supply the seven million people of greater New York with their daily sugar ration for a period of a month. Collected into one great mass, this would make a real worth while lump of sugar occupying a volume of four million cubic feet, or equal in size to a building 500 feet long, 200 feet wide and about 40 feet high."

Believing firmly in the value of carbonated drinks and in the value of their sugar content Mr. Hamm said that it is the purpose of his organization to use only the best cane sugar and flavors. These two features, together with the best machines for filtering syrups and for sterilizing bottles, have built up a business in Appleton which ranks on a par with any of like size in the state.

MANY RADIO SETS NEED ADJUSTMENT FOR FALL SEASON

M-L-O Tone Manufacturing Company Has Complete Set of Testing Instruments

"With the resumption of the radio season, which began with the broadcasting of the Dempsey-Tunney fight a few days ago, there are many radio sets which will not function properly until they have been fully repaired," says Edward Gust of the M-L-O Tone Manufacturing company, 635 Kernan-ave. "In this connection, our company has installed a complete set of testing and adjusting instruments to repair or adjust any make of set."

"We have now in our offices testing and adjustment equipment which includes an oscillator for calibrating the Filocycle range of any set, a Wheatstone bridge for measuring resistance of any unit in the radio or power eliminator such as grid leaks, transformers, potentiometers and resistances. We also have a tube tester for determining the characteristics of all types of tubes, also their condition after they have been in use for some time.

"I am sure that our laboratory is as complete as any radio testing laboratory can be and can take care of any work necessary at the lowest possible cost to the customer. A radio is a very complex set of electrical parts and unless all these parts are working in coordination the best results cannot be obtained.

"Some little defect may easily cause all kinds of trouble as, for instance, defective tubes, loose contacts, and ordinary wear on condensers which must necessarily be corrected by proper testing and adjusting. Results to be obtained in this year's reception will depend entirely on the condition of your set and equipment. We recommend that anyone having a radio that has been in use for several years have it tested thoroughly and adjusted to obtain best results. It requires only a few minutes with proper testing equipment to locate any defect or adjustment necessary to bring a set back to good working order. Our complete laboratory will take care of all your troubles."

QUEER PRIZES WON AT BISLEY SHOOTING

London—(AP)—Some queer prizes were won at the famed Bisley shooting competitions.

A man who lives in Montreal, Canada won ten tons of coal. He is wondering how he will get it home without paying more than it is worth.

Another man who won a woman's coat is a bachelor. His problem is to decide how to dispose of the coat.

A teetotaler has a case of whisky on his hands. But he has made many friends since winning the prize.

An army sergeant with a voice like a "Rocky Mountain canary" won a loud speaker.

Babson Says Home, Store Rents Are Much Too High

Babson Park, Mass.—During the past week, Roger W. Babson has been making a careful survey of the retail situation.

"Statistics indicate both an improvement and decline in the retail situation," he says. "Failure statistics, for instance, show an improving situation for this fall. Although many bankers looked for a marked increase in business failures this month, yet they have not matured. This may be due to easy money conditions, or to improved trade conditions, or to some other cause. The fact remains that failure statistics indicate an improvement in the situation. On the other hand, a series of advertisements which have been issued by a certain Casualty Indemnity company tend to show an entirely different situation.

"A recent advertisement is headed '43 per cent of firms in business are losing money.' This statement is based upon certain corporations income tax figures, showing that out of 417,421 corporations reporting, only 236,389 made a profit. Without doubt thees figures are largely made up of retailers, especially small independent retailers, who are attempting to stand up against chain store competition. This especially applies to retailers in cities, who, for the past few years, really have been working for their landlords. The chain store installment business and high rents have been the bane of small retailers. Chain stores are inevitable and must be accepted; the installment business has come to stay, but is about at its peak for the present era. This means that the immediate problem is a question of rent.

"A study of the rent situation shows that there has been a tremendous advance, both in house and store rents, during the past ten years. In most sections store rents are now double pre-war rents in some large cities they are treble and quadruple. Without doubt, in some sections large rents are justified even in the case of homes. Even with the present high rents, the man who pays rent to live in a house is better off than the man who owns the house. Tenants require so much and repairs are so expensive that there is much trouble and little profit in building homes to rent. As a rule, however, this criticism does not apply to stores. Business property is usually an attractive investment. There is no excuse for business rents going up as they have in certain cities. Furthermore, it looks very much as if business rents were now at their peak in certain sections. This applies not only to retail stores, but also to offices. Statistics rather indicate that the small business man will receive some relief in the near future from high rents;—at least there is no reason for any retailer to pay more rent from now on.

"There is a tendency today to forget the importance of retailers. The retailer is the common soldier in the army of prosperity. There are about 2,000,000 of these soldiers all working to take care of the output of our mills and factories. The retailer is the life blood of the industrial community. He has a trust to perform and a service to render. Moreover, the failure of many retailers to recognize this fact is the reason why so many of them are now not making more money. Some economists believe that there are too many inefficient retailers today and this may be true. Certainly nothing would help lengthen the present era of prosperity more than to have every retailer attend to business, render good service and really help his customers.

"Although the volume of business throughout the country is very good today, there is a general lack of profits. Volume is increasing, but profits are declining. This especially applies to the retail trade. Charts of retail trade indicate that there is a tendency for the large stores to get larger and the small stores to get smaller. The truth is that this applies in a general way to all forms of industry, the larger corporations seem to be getting larger and richer, while the small corporations seem to be getting smaller and poorer. If this tendency continues, I should not be surprised to see it get into politics within the next few years. The independent retailers will probably endeavor to submit to Congress and to state legislatures various quack cures. The retailers will attempt the same solution for their problems as have the wageworkers and the farmers. Legislation will probably be presented to bring about rent reductions, improve credit facilities and even attempt to protect profits. It must be remembered that although big business has the profits, yet little business has the votes.

"There is one campaign in progress which may be successful. I refer to the growing demand on the part of small retailers, that manufacturers charge the same price for their product, irrespective of the quantity ordered. At first thought this seems a ridiculous demand and yet it would be demanding no more of manufacturers than manufacturers themselves demand of the railroads. It was not many years ago when the railroads could make special rates to large corporations, based on the amount of goods shipped—that is, the more goods shipped, the lower the freight rate. When the small shipper commenced his campaign against such discrimination, he was ridiculed as a theorist or a socialist. Yet he won out and today we would not think of going back to the old system. Therefore, the retailers may win out in their one-price campaign so that the small merchant may get goods at the same price as the large merchants and chain stores pay.

"From the latest statistics available it is apparent that retail trade conditions vary greatly in the different sections of the country. Retail trade is distinctly better in the northwest and in the cotton sections of the south. Retail trade is better today in Washington, Oregon, Montana, Wisconsin, and Minnesota, than it was a year ago. Even some of the agricultural states in the central west, such as Nebraska, are enjoying better retail trade today. Taking the United States as a whole, however,—I should not be surprised to see some falling off, as the need of meeting instalment payments naturally retards the ability to buy new goods for cash.

"Business as a whole continues about normal. The stock market is still booming, due to easy money; labor is well employed due to our severe immigration restrictions, and manufacturers are still protected against foreign competition by our high tariffs."

INTEREST GROWING IN RADIO BUSINESS

Dependability of Manufacturer Should Be Remembered in Buying Set

"With the opening of the radio season for 1927, more interest is being shown than in previous years," says F. H. Zahrt, president and manager of the Fox River Hardware company, 130 N. Appleton-st.

"Radio has done much for the homes of this country. It furnishes entertainment for the whole family almost every hour of the day," he said.

"Every important event is broadcasted: Market reports, weather reports, grand opera, sacred music, jazz —take your choice with radio.

"Even the results of the Dempsey-Tunney fight will be known in the homes as quickly as at the ring, side.

"Perhaps the most important development in radio for 1927 is the perfecting of the one dial control. With this new creation you can enjoy real reception with the least effort, and you have wonderful selectivity.

"Another important development is the perfection of power units. Any set can be operated direct from the light socket very satisfactorily.

"If you have an A battery, by adding a Balkite Trickle Charger and a B power unit, you have a complete light socket operated set at a reasonable cost.

"The matched-unit principle employed only by Stewart Warner in the manufacture of radios, where receivers, tubes, speakers and accessories are all matched to function together is the result of careful study of one of the largest and most successful radio manufacturers. The Fox River Hardware company is the distributor for Stewart Warner Radios in Appleton.

"The functioning of this unified system is of course vastly superior to any other that may be obtained by an assortment of miscellaneous unmatched units or parts made by different manufacturers.

"In the purchase of a radio the reliability of the manufacturer should always be considered as many of the smaller manufacturers will soon be eliminated and it will be difficult to get service on these sets.

"The present outlook for the season of 1927-28 is very promising."

JACK LOCKWILL, THE LION TAMER

Jack whistled and grinned. "How much faking is there to it?" he asked. Delano chuckled. "Some," he admitted. "I really go into the cage with only one lion, the one on my right, which they call 'King Leo.' He's actually very old, almost toothless, and gentle as a kitten. The other one is 'Snarleyow,' a youngster who's just as dangerous as Leo is harmless."

"But, how is it you are here?" asked Jack, as the man returned the poster to his pocket. "I have two enemies," was the answer. "Drink is one, a rival the other."

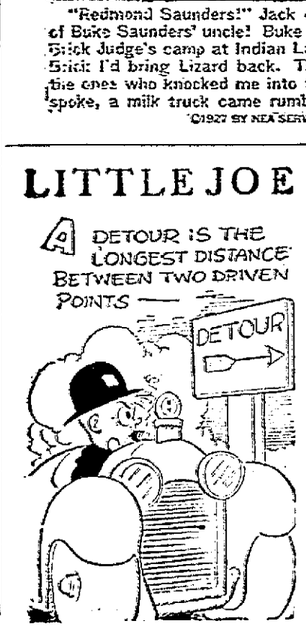

Then a flame sprang into his eyes. "I knew Redmond Saunders drugged the stuff I drank in Keyport, where I was left behind when the big show went on to Claremont!" he cried.

"Redmond Saunders!" Jack exclaimed. "Why, that's the name of Buke Saunders' uncle! Buke and Lizard Wattles ran away from Brick Judge's camp at Indian Lake. I'm following them, and I told Brick I'd bring Lizard back. They stole a car—" "Then they're the ones who knocked me into the ditch," declared Delano. As he spoke, a milk truck came rumbling over the road.

Argue Compulsory Accident Insurance for Automobile Owners

Special to Post-Crescent

Clintonville—A class in debate has been organized in the local high school under the direction of Miss Vivian Hipple. For many years Clintonville has not attempted to have a debate team as each teacher found his schedule too full to add another task so this year the board of education provided an extra teacher.

A class of about 30 met Wednesday and plans were formed for active work. The following subject was decided upon: "Resolved — That we should enact a law requiring automobile owners to carry personal liability insurance in an amount of not less than $5,000, unless they establish and maintain evidence showing financial ability to respond in damages to the extent of $5,000."

The local potato market dropped Wednesday to $1.10 per hundred pounds. The crop in this locality is below average due to the excessive drought earlier in the season. RAINS DELAY WORK ON CLINTONVILLE HOTEL

Clintonville—Contnued rain has delayed work on the new hotel building. Concrete pouring was finished during the pleasant weather.

Contractors Fred Lemke and Henry Sengstock have a large force of workmen who are crowding the work in order that the outside may be finished before cold weather sets in. All day Thursday several trucks and teams were kept busy hauling and unloading the structural steel, steel laths and steel reinforcements for the concrete. The structure is to be fireproof, of steel, brick, concrete and tile. Removal of the wooden forms holding the concrete is now in progress.

Considerable construction work is under way on County trunk D west of this city, toward Dupont. In several places hills have been cut down and the road graded, then covered with crushed rock and gravel. Loose rock upon a slippery roadbed during the last rains have made travel over a long stretch of road dangerous and farmers are experiencing considerable inconvenience getting to and from market.

George Parker was uninjured when his truck, loaded with milk for the factory in this city, went into the ditch. He was ming down the McNutt hill on the Marion road, when he lost control of the truck. Several days of rain had made the roads difficult to travel and the heavy load materially increased the hazzard. The truck was damaged and had to be towed into town.

WOMEN DO MORE WORK THAN MEN, THEY HEAR

Madison—(AP)—Despite the fact that American women are more free from manual labor than women of other nations, they still perform more physical tasks than the average man. This was the assertion Friday of John N. Cadby, addressing the womens' conference of the Wisconsin Utilities association. He is executive secretary of the association.

Mr. Cadby urged the organized woment of the industry to pledge active support to the general Federation of Women's Clubs in its nation-wide movement to improve home labor conditions.

He lauded the plan of the national women's clubs and stated that their efforts would be greatly augmented if the women employes of gas, electric, transportation and telephone companies activity assisted local branches of the clubs.

"Men employ more labor saving devices in their daily work than women" said Cadby. "They exert less physical energy in their work than women.

WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT . . . BUICK WILL BUILD THEM

You Need Never Change Your Oil if You Own a Buick

Last year Buick said: "Change your oil only four times a year." Buick tests at that time had shown that oil changes would never be necessary, with the Oil Filter to remove impurities, and with the Crankcase Ventilator, Thermostatic Circulation Control and Automatic Heat Control to prevent oil dilution.

Now, more than a year has passed, and Buick owners in every section of the world—under every climatic condition—have also proved that you never need change your oil if you own a Buick—replenishment and inspection of the Buick Oil Filter only are required.

A Mind That Wills—And A Will That Minds

Say it either way—a mind that wills or a will that minds—it expresses that quality of self-domination which is one and the same thing as self-advancement.

With a mind which directs an indomitable will—or a will which is constantly controlled by an invincible mind—but one thing more is needed to reach the limits of one's abilities.

And that one thing is the practical list of everyday opportunities presented by the Post-Crescent A-B-C Classified Section.

Favorable buying, selling or renting opportunities galore are placed before you daily—and perhaps best of all from your standpoint are those columns of opportunities to step into a better job than you now occupy.

If you have a mind to read and a will to follow the A-B-C Ads—you are bound to have plenty of material for success.

How To Play Bridge

By Milton C. Work

The pointer for today is:

FOUR CARDS OF THE PARTNER'S SUIT IS MORE THAN NORMAL SUPPORT, WITH IT ONLY A FREAK HOLDING WOULD JUSTIFY A DENIAL.

This week we are considering twenty hands, all supposed to be held by North, South (Dealer) having bid one Heart and West (Second Hand) having passed.

Today's hands are the last four of the twenty.

NO. 17	NO. 18
♠ Q	♠ X
♡ J-X-X-X	♡ J-X-X-X
◇ A-K-Q-10-X-X	◇ A-J-X-X-X-X
♣ A-Q	♣ X-X
NO. 19	NO. 20
♠ NONE	♠ A-Q-X
♡ J-X-X-X-X	♡ J-X-X-X-X
◇ A-K-X-X-X-X-X-X	◇ A-Q-X-X-X
♣ X	♣ NONE

No. 17. North should pass. With this holding a game is pratically sure at Hearts; it might not be made at Diamonds. The Diamond bid should not be risked merely on account of the increased honor score, nor should a No Trump be risked with a singleton Queen of Spades. It would be perfectly sound bidding to jump partner's Hearts to three or four were such jump necessary, but the hand is so strong that adverse bidding, even in the Spade suit, is not to be feared and such bidding might give a chance for a profitable double.

No. 18. Three Hearts. The making of this contract is far from being assured, but with this type of hand, adverse bidding should be shut out if possible.

No. 19. Five Hearts. A reasonably safe bid and the type of hand with which any conservative risk should be taken to shut out adverse bidding.

No. 20. Pass. Ample strength for a jump but no need for it. The hand is so strong that adverse bidding, which can only be in the lowly Club suit, should be encouraged.

JURY FAILS TO AGREE IN MEDICAL TRIAL

A jury reported deadlock at 11:30 Friday night in the case against William Horner, Appleton, charged with practicing medicine without a license. The 12 men had deliberated from 11:10 Friday forenoon but could not reach a decision. At 4:30 they asked Judge Theodore Berg, who was hearing the case, to be allowed to report a deadlock but he sent them back with instructions to reach a verdict, if possible. The case opened in the upper branch of municipal court Thursday afternoon.

Horner was arrested July 27, on complaint of William Krause, official investigator for the Wisconsin State Board of Medical examiners. He pleaded not guilty, claiming that he was merely associated with Dr. C. F. Lahn. Horner said he was general manager of a company with Dr. Lahn as the physician. CORONER'S JURY REACHES VERDICT IN CISLO DEATH

A coroner's jury Friday afternoon at the city hall here found that the death of Joseph Cislo Hilbert, at St. Elizabeth hospital here following a night brawl in the village of Hilbert early in September was due to perforations of the intestines. The report indicated that the perforations existed several days before death.

RELATIVES SUCCEED IN BREAKING MAN'S WILL

After hearing final arguments Friday in the effort of Mrs. August Rohm and William Stelzner, Appleton, to break the will of their brother Louis Stelzner, Kaukauna, in which he left his entire estate to a third brother, Julius, Kaukauna, Judge Fred V. Heinemann in county court, declared the will null and void and ordered a hearing on a previous will.

The judge ruled that the will had not been executed according to law, that undue influence had been brought to bear on Luis at the time he signed the will and that he was of unsound mind when the document was signed.

In a will made Dec. 23, 1916, Luis had bequeathed $100 to Mrs. Rohm and $50 to his brother, William. In a second will made on June 8, 1927, he left all his property to Julius, with whom he was living at the time. Luis died July 28 and when the second will was offered for probate, the Appleton on relatives entered their protests. Judge Heinemann has ordered a hearing on Oct. 11 on the first will.

LATEST NEWS OF THE AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY

AUTOMOBILE GAINING FOOTHOLD IN BRAZIL

Awakening of National Interest Is Shown by result of Non-stop Run

Scenes reminiscent in point of interest and enthusiasm of the early days of the automobile in this country were recently enacted in Brazil. They clearly showed the strong hold the automobile is gaining in the public mind in the South American countries and indicated a greater future market for cars made in this country.

The occasion was the first non-stop run ever negotiated between Sao Paulo and Rio de Janerio. It was successfully made in an Oldsmobile touring car in 96 hours, considered most remarkable time in view of the almost impassable roads which constituted the major portion of the route.

The oldsmobile non-stop run was staged under the auspices of two prominent sporting clubs, the Club Volanet of Sao Paulo and the Club dos Bandeirantes of Rio de Janerio. Emilio Santoro, Brazilian motorist, drove during the run, which was checked by club officials during its entire distance of 2496 kilometers.

From the viewpoint of U. S. automotive interests, however, the successful completion of the feat was secondary in importance to the reception given the car along the route and the interest displayed throughout Brazil in the run. Not only did the various newspapers of Brazil carry stories daily during the run, but they also had special placards on their bulletin boards on which were posted hourly notices showing the progress of the Oldsmobile.

In cities and towns wherever a newspaper bulletin board was to be found large crowds collected during the run, rivaling the throngs in this country that gather to watch the progress of the world's championship baseball series. When a new report was received showing that the Oldsmobile again had reached an objective along the route on time and without mishap, cheers greeted the announcement.

In this interest display by the general populace of Brazil in the ability of the Oldsmobile to overcome obstacles, automotive men there see an awakening of the automobile fever which gripped this country during the first decade of this century. They expect to see it result in a material expansion of good road building and the more general use of automobiles.

At present there are approximately 82,000 automotive vehicles, including trucks and busses, in Brazil, or one vehicle for each 378 inhabitants as compared to one car for each 5.3 persons in this country. Brazil now has 18,800 miles of highway, which constitutes only one mile of highway to every 174 square miles of territory.

ACCIDENTS REDUCED BY HOMICIDE SQUAD

Police Officers Take Pictures of Wreck, Interview Witnesses on the Spot

Traffic accidents are being effectively reduced at Cleveland, Ohio, by a newly organized and unique homicide squad that is doing much to insure the safety of that city's streets.

The plan, which is being studied in other localities in the hope that by adopting it traffic fatalities elsewhere may be lowered, consists in maintaining a squad of trained investigators competent to secure evidence that will hold in court and fix blame on the person responsible for the accident.

Two police officers—a sergeant and a patrolman—comprise the working crew. As soon as a traffic accident is reported these officers hurry to the scene in their Chevrolet used expressly for this purpose and secure all available data. One man is a skilled photographer and takes pictures of the scene from a number of different angles. The other carries a typewriter and makes out a complete report right on the spot.

The names of all parties to the accident are taken, as are those of all witnesses, and statements from everybody are typed. By getting statements immediately, as well as photographs to introduce into court at trial, the police have complete and accurate information on which to base a prosecution if anyone is shown to be at fault.

In addition to its Chevrolet which has the essential speed and snap to get the investigators to the scene quickly, the squad has complete photographic equipment including a dark room for developing pictures immediately after an accident, two offices to which principals and witnesses are often brought and quizzed, filing cabinets, and materials to make sketches of the scene. This squad is said to be the only one of its kind in the United States.

Edward J. Donahue, traffic commissioner, who put the plan into effect, credits it with being one of the most practical safety factors within his long experience. Already the squad has secured many manslaughter convictions, while convictions on charges of reckless driving and fleeing from the scene of an accident run into the hundreds.

STUDEBAKER MAKES MARK IN SOUTHWEST

Remarkable Performance to Credit of Car in Tulsa-Colorado Springs Run

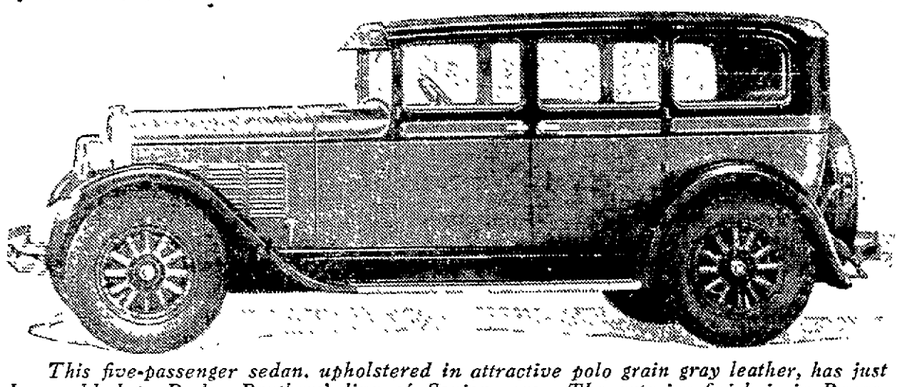

Six hundred and ninety miles in 14 hours and 45 minutes, an average of 46.7 miles per hour, is the remarkable performance recently made by a Studebaker Commander Coupe on a run between Tulsa, Oklahoma and Colorado Springs, Colorado. No wonder westerners say The Commander "could climb trees if it had claws."

The Commander Coupe was driven during the sensational dash by Stanley Thomas, president of the Thomas Motor Company of Tulsa. Studebaker dealers. According to Mr. Thomas, he registered out of Tulsa with the Western Union Telegraph Company at 2:53 o'clock in the morning and registered in at Colorado Springs at 4:38 o'clock that same afternoon. As there is a difference of one hour between the times of the two cities, the run was completed in exactly 14 hours and 45 minutes.

"That is elapsed time," said Mr. Thomas. "We made three stops. When you take that into consideration you will see that our average of better than 45 miles an hour over bad roads was quite remarkable."

No mechanical trouble was experienced on the run. The car is in such good condition that it is used as a demonstrator in Tulsa at the present time, according to Mr. Thomas.

DODGE BROTHERS INTRODUCE LEATHER UPHOLSTERED SENIOR SEDAN

This five-passenger sedan, upholstered in attractive polo grain gray leather, has just been added to Dodge Brothers' line of Senior cars. The exterior finish is in Brunswick blue and black, making the job particularly striking. This is the first leather upholstered car in the company's Senior line and contrary to the usual custom in the automobile industry it is priced lower than the jobs done in mohair. It will sell for $1495 f. o. b. Detroit, $100 under the price of the same body type with mohair or broadcloth upholstery.

3 NEW STYLES ADDED TO LA SALLE'S LINE

Three of 15 Body Types Have 134-inch Wheelbase; Others on 125-inch Pattern

The Cadillac Motor Car company's line of LaSalle cars has been increased by the addition of three new body style types with a longer wheelbase. The three new bodies, a seven-passenger sedan, a five-passenger Imperial sedan and a seven-passenger Imperial sedan, are on a 134-inch wheelbase. All other models have a wheelbase length of 125 inches, including the recently announced Fisher custom five-passenger town sedan, a close-coupled five-passenger body of unusual beauty.

The prices of the three new cars are respectively $2,795, $2,795 and $2,895. These additions give the company 15 LaSalle body types — eight of them Fisher custom-built bodies, four of them Fleetwood bodies, and the three new Fisher bodies. Including Cadillacs and LaSalles, the company now has a complete line of forty-one body types and styles with prices ranging from $2,495 for the Fisher-built custom LaSalle phaeton, to $5,500 for the Cadillac Fleetwood transformable limousine. It also supplies products of the Cadillac Motor Car company on three wheelbases—125-inch and 134-inch for the LaSalles, and 140-inch for the Cadillacs.

The seven-passenger sedan is a particularly commodious family car. Both the seven and five-passenger Imperial sedans might well be called convertible limousines, as they may be used as chauffeur-driver vehicles or owner-driven by raising or lowering the glass partition between the front and rear compartments. The upholstery is of finest quality mohair, with the option of Bedford cloth throughout, or with the leather finish in the front compartment.

The five-passenger model has special features of particular interest. It has the added riding comfort of the 134-inch wheelbase. The roof line at the rear falls away in a particularly graceful curve. The rear quarters are of leather and the vanity case and smoking set above the armrests on each side of the car are set in alcoves, or recesses, so that they may rest flush with the inside of the car.

PACKARD SHIPMENTS BEST IN 28 YEARS

Previous High Record Broken and Expect to Set New Mark in September

Packard car shipments for August, 1927 were the greatest in any month of the company's 28 years, according to figures just compiled by the Packard factory. The previous high record for any one month was substantially bettered and it is a certainty that September, 1927 shipments will equal other records.

Although the new Packard cars which comprised these shipments were formally announced only within the past two weeks, many thousands have been in owners' hands for nearly three months. Refinements and improvements on the new series Packard Six and Eight cars have proved to be so important that even before their announcements public acceptance was great enough to set a factory shipping record in a month long known as one of the quietest in motor car sales.

Officials of the Packard factory believe that such a record is further proof of progress in the stabilizing of motor car buying. It indicates, they feel, a steady forward march toward a better buying trend in the purchasing of a good motor car and the driving of it over a longer period of time. Comparison of shipment figures during epochs in Packard history show how this habit of better motor car buying has been steadily growing.

In what might be termed the infancy of the present Detroit plant, cars shipped in the four years from 1904 to 1907 inclusive totaled considerably less than were shipped during August, 1927. In that one month alone only four less units were loaded for shipment than were produced during the entire year of 1913, a period corresponding to the half way milestone in current Packard history.

The year 1903 saw the Packard Motor Car Company moved from its tiny parent plant at Waren, Ohio and established at Detroit, but it was not until the following year, 1904, that "production" was actually begun. Today, refinements and improvements which make for lower and more beautiful lines, longer motor life and greater driving convenience are causing nearly all of that yearly "production" to be shipped in a single day's work.

Despite an increased production schedule and a greater shipping program, the Packard Motor Car company entered its new fiscal year and its fall business with thousands of unfilled orders. The unusual reception accorded the improved Packards together with normal sales expectancy indicate strong activity in Packard sales this fall.

HUDSON PRODUCTION PASSES 1926 RECORD

Sales During First Nine Months Far Surpass Company's Expectations

With its production for the year near the quarter-million mark, Hudson Motor Car company already has manufactured more Hudson and Essex cars in 1927 than in the entire 1926 season, according to an announcement made today. The 250,000th six-cylinder car for the year will be turned out in the next few days.

Hudson became, earlier this year, one of the small circle of companies working on its second million total of cars. By far the greater part of this total has come since Hudson-Essex entered the volume field a few years ago; the years 1925, 1926 and 1927 will alone count for more than three-quarters of a million cars.

"The record for this year and the seasons immediately preceding it," said Aaron DeRoy, Hudson-Essex distributor, 'prove that the motor car industry is entering its period of greatest strength and popularity. Cars which deserve the public's favor are enjoying their greatest successes, and can look to the future with entire confidence. Cars which are designed with attractiveness, performance and reliability combined are winning the market.

"At the very beginning of 1927, motor observers saw that Hudson-Essex would have a successful year. As the months have developed, all previous Hudson-Essex records have fallen one by one. In no other year has the public shown so spectacular and consistent a demand for these cars.

"No factor has been responsible for this. The new high-compression motors, with their exceptional efficiency and their ability to use any type of gasoline, are important factors, but by no means the only ones. Hudson-Essex cars combine all the qualities of easy speed, fine braking power, smooth riding and effortless handling.

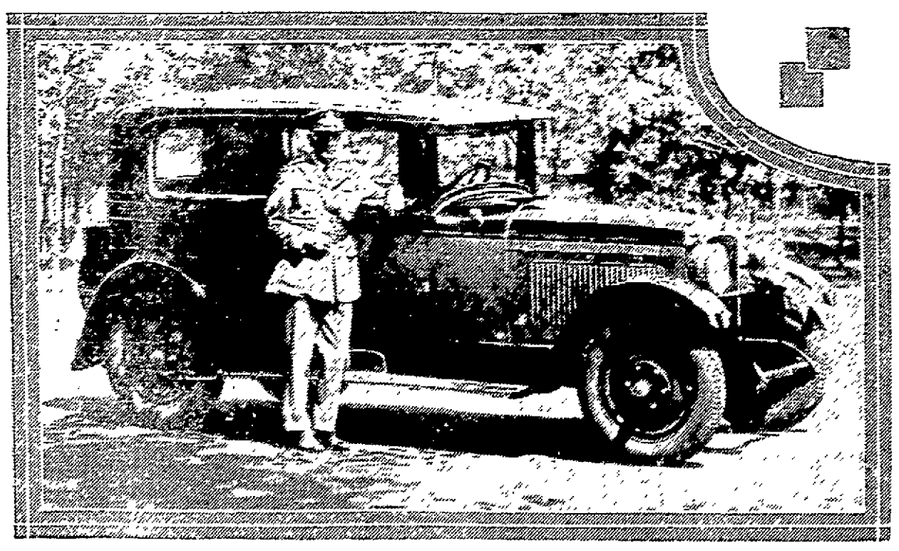

"In traffic they spurt quickly to the desired pace and the gears shift so smoothly that action with them is subconscious. A sudden swerve is needed and the wheel swings a finely balanced car as easily as a bicycle. There is a sudden stop to be made or a collision, and the foot pedal is sufficient; quick acting stoppers grab the wheels like a giant hand."

Even the foot rest, in Buick for 1928, is covered with high grade carpet materials, matching the floor covering. Every two-seated closed model has arm rests, upholstered in the same material as the rear seat.

Makers of the finest furniture are no more exacting, in shaping and tailoring their easy chairs, than is Fisher in building beauty, luxury and above all, comfort, into Buick's interiors.

The largest active volcano in the world is Kilauea in the Hawaiian Islands.

Capt. Gray and His New Nash Sedan

Captain H. C. Gray, holder of the world's altitude record for free balloons and one of the most celebrated balloon racers of the United States army, was a recent visitor to the Nash plant in Kenosha, Wis., where he took delivery of an Advanced Six two-door sedan.

Captain Gray in May broke the altitude record held since 1901 by Germany when he reached a height of 42,470 feet—over eight miles. He plans to make several other ascensions during the next few months and may set still another record for the rest of the world to shoot at.

8 FALCON KNIGHTS IN GRUELLING TEST

Cars in 75,000 Mile Run Showing Remarkable Endurance and Power

Detroit — To prove the endurance, stamina and longer life of a car powered by the Knight sleeve-valve engine, eight Falcon-Knight sixes are nearing the quarter million mile mark in a gruelling road test, according to a statement made here this week by officials of the Falcon Motors Corporation, builders of this product.

For more than six months these eight Falcon-Knight cars have been pounding over the roads, mountainous and level, in all sections of the country, each one having covered to date 30,000 miles. Only minor adjustments have been necessary in this severe test which will not be completed until the cars reach 75,000 miles each. At that time the engines will be brought to the Falcon Motors plant, dis-assembled and inspected by Knight engine experts to attempt to determine what, if any, wear is noticeable in the internals of the engine.

Up to this point, according to Falcon Motors officials, the eight test cars have shown remarkable qualities, not only for endurance and stamina but for power, speed, fuel and oil economy and freedom from mechanical troubles. When the dis-assembling of the test engines takes place after the completion of the 75,000 mile grind, Falcon officials frankly assert that they expect to find no traces of appreciable wear on any part of the engines.

"It has been the aim of our company to produce a car with a motor that will set a new standard of motor performance," declared John A. Nichols, Jr., president of the Falcon Motor Corporation, in commenting on the severe road test being undergone by the eight cars. "Due to the principle of design employed in the Knight sleeve-valve engine and its ability to outline the best type of poppet-valve engines, I have every reason to believe that the power plants now undergoing the severe road test will show little noticeable wear at the end of 75,000 miles. The usual troubles found in poppet-valve engines are lacking in the Knight sleeve-valve motor. By using sleeves rather than poppet valves, carbon formation, the common evil of all other types of engines, is unheard of in a Knight sleeve-valve engine.

"More than ever before the motorwise public is turning to the Knight type of engine as the power plant that best answers all their demands for power, speed, economy of operation, smoothness and longer life. To this fact and the high standard of performance we may attribute the instant success and the attendant sales volume that has become so marked since the initial introduction of the Falcon-Knight Six scarcely seven months ago."

AUTO BATTERIES DO MANY KINDS OF WORK

Not Only Is Battery Essential in Any Car, but It Provides Luxuries

"Do you realize that the battery hidden under the seat of your automobile plays such an important part in the operation of your car?

"In every day of driving it performs from four to 20 essential duties," says Al Schroeder, manager of the Willard Storage Battery company. "The tasks which it must do day in and day out are necessary for the satisfaction of all motorists—supplying current for the starter, ignition, stop light and at night head and tail lights.

"Besides these vital uses there are many others which the battery fills constantly for the more fastidious driver. Many of these functions are very important in giving you complete pleasure and convenience in handling your car.

"When it rains you need your windshield wiper—the battery responds. Spot lights, auxiliary driving lights, and trouble lights are indispensable on long night drives. The battery operates the vaporizer—equipment on many cars. Your convenience demands dome lights, panel lights, instrument lights, stop lights, backing light, parking lights and in this modern age cigar and cigarette lighters—for all these purposes the battery is always at your command.

"It is too much to expect all of these things from your battery? No! They add to your comfort—to your safety. It's true, however, that it takes a more reliable battery to do them economically, but in the end it's just as easy to have that kind of battery.

"Any Willard battery will give you full measure of useful service for every dollar of its purchase price."

HEADLIGHTS ARE ISSUE AMONG FRENCH DRIVERS

Paris—(AP)—Blinding headlights on automobiles are again an issue in France.

The practice of shutting off the lights when passing another car at night is said to be responsible for many accidents. Leaders in the driving world suggest it would be safer to let the lights glare rather than drive in comparative darkness for two or three seconds.

The law requires headlights to be so directed as not to blind other drivers, but this has been found difficult. One solution has been to direct the right well to the right and to shut off the left light only when meeting other cars.

The United States has 22,000,000 of the 27,000,000 automobiles in the world.

OAKLAND IS WINNER IN RACES IN PARIS

Easy-handling Qualities and Beauty Win Recognition in 2 Contests

The beauty and easy handling qualities of the Oakland Six were officially recognized when the car won five awards in recent competitions at Paris against a formidable field of contestants from all parts of the world.

The Oakland scored first in two different classes at the Concours d' Elegance, or "automobile beauty show," conducted under the auspices of the newspaper "L' Auto."

An Oakland Six coupe with snakeskin upholstered body designed by Bourack and de Costier was awarded the blue ribbon in the two-seated inside drive class. The car was driven by Mlle. Blanche Montel, prominent French actress of the Theatre de l' Avenue. In the inside drive three-seated class an Oakland coupe driven by Mrs. Barclay, wife of Major Barcly of the American Embassy, took another first prize.

A few days later, the Actresses' Automobile Championship was held at the Parc des Princes. The rules required each of the fair contestants to drive her car over a straight course, around a sharp turn and to stop in front of two barriers. She then had to alight, remove the barriers, drive through, replace the barriers and finish the run.

Oakland cars, with their steering wheels and controls designed for ease of handling, particularly by women drivers, swept the boards in this contest, taking first, second and third prizes. Mlle. Montel, driving the same car which had won the beauty contest a few days before, also took first in this event. Mlle. Diana of the Theatre Marigny was second and Mlle. Huguette Jay of the Theatre des Capucines was third, both driving their own Oakland Sixes.

All four wheels of Buick for 1928 are carefully balanced to insure even running, one of the many 1927 Buick features which is perpetuated in the new models.

Twelve luxurious closed models, and four de luxe open cars, comprise the line of Buicks for 1928. All embody refinements undreamed of, even in the costliest custom motor cars.

There is no gap between the rear fenders and the frame, in Buick for 1928. The gasoline tank cover and wings completely fill all holes, lending a finished appearance not found elsewhere.

Improvements in the tire carrier of Buick for 1928 obviate the danger of breaking the carrier brackets by carrying two spares.

RECLAIMED RUBBER BARRED BY MILLER

Vast Sums Spent in Research Would Be Lost if Old Rubber Was Used

A very common fallacy with reference to automobile tires today is the supposed use of reclaimed rubber in standard tires. Miller tire men state that the facts in the case are, that no standard tire today contains even an ounce of reclaimed, revulcanized or old rubber, in any part of the tire. Manufacturers of standard tires, whose products are renowned the world over, point to the fact that tires are giving greater service today than ever before, as conclusive proof that only the best of materials is used.

Miller tire engineers declare that the vast sums spent in research, experiments and in testing tires over millions of miles, would be lost if tires were to be cut in quality by the use of reclaimed rubber.

Exceptional mileage on all manner of cars furnishes conclusive proof that tires give greater value today than ever in the history of the industry. A recent authoritative statement points out that motorists are now receiving 27 times greater dollar value in their tires than they received a few years ago. Mileage has increased while the purchase price has declined.
